

The parts of a typical microscope

The microscope is a device that is used to view objects that are too small to be seen by the naked eye. It is made up of several parts, including the ocular lens, the revolver, the stage, the stage clips, the condenser, the base, the coarse focus, and the fine focus.

When you use a microscope, you should always follow the safety rules. First, you should always handle the microscope with both hands. Second, you should always keep the microscope clean. Third, you should always use the coarse focus to bring the specimen into focus. Fourth, you should always use the fine focus to sharpen the image. Finally, you should always turn off the microscope when you are finished.
