

WRITING TEST-TAKING TIPS

- On the prompts, use the writing process - Prewrite (brainstorm), draft, and revise/edit.
- Underline the key words in the prompt. If it asks you to explain, make sure you make your point clear. If it asks you to describe, use the senses! If it asks you to tell about, chances are it's a personal story they're asking for. Do what the question asks!
- Really organize your thoughts in the prewriting step. Identify three main points to mention in your introduction, then support each point in the next three paragraphs with clear explanations, examples, stories, etc. Finally, sum them all up in your conclusion and tie it all back to your introduction.
- In the brainstorming step, there are no stupid ideas! Just write whatever comes to mind, and then once you stop writing, go through them and pick your best idea for further thought. Branch off from it with ideas that would make it the best piece of writing. If it doesn't work, then go back through the original list and perhaps pick another idea.
- Use a scrap piece of paper for your prewriting, but remember, it will not be scored! Don't forget to write your final copy in the space provided on your test. Double check this step!
- After you are finished writing your responses to the writing prompts, reread the question and make sure you answered what it asked.
