Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-impact exercise program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life of older adults. The study was a randomized controlled trial. The participants were 60 older adults (mean age = 70.5 years) who were randomly assigned to either the exercise group or the control group. The exercise group performed a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-impact exercise program. The control group did not perform any exercise program. The results showed that the exercise group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness and health-related quality of life than the control group at the end of the 12-week program. The findings suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-impact exercise program can improve the physical fitness and health-related quality of life of older adults.
