Decolonizing the Map James R. Akerman, 2017-06-16 Almost universally newly independent states seek to affirm their independence and identity by making the production of new maps and atlases a top priority For formerly colonized peoples however this process neither begins nor ends with independence and it is rarely straightforward Mapping their own land is fraught with a fresh set of issues how to define and administer their territories develop their national identity establish their role in the community of nations and more The contributors to Decolonizing the Map explore this complicated relationship between mapping and decolonization while engaging with recent theoretical debates about the nature of decolonization itself These essays originally delivered as the 2010 Kenneth Nebenzahl Jr Lectures in the History of Cartography at the Newberry Library encompass more than two centuries and three continents Latin America Africa and Asia Ranging from the late eighteenth century through the mid twentieth contributors study topics from mapping and national identity in late colonial Mexico to the enduring complications created by the partition of British India and the racialized organization of space in apartheid and post apartheid South Africa A vital contribution to studies of both colonization and cartography Decolonizing the Map is the first book to systematically and comprehensively examine the engagement of mapping in the long and clearly unfinished parallel processes of decolonization and nation building in the modern world

Framing Asian Studies Albert Tzeng, 2018-05-24 This book explores the interconnection between geopolitical context and the ways this context frames our knowledge about Asia highlighting previously neglected cause effect relations It also examines how various knowledge institutions promote and shape Asian Studies The authors seek to explain why Asian Studies and its subfields developed in the way they did and what the implications of these transformations might be on intellectual and political understandings of Asia The book not only builds on the current debates on the decolonization and de imperialization of knowledge about Asia it also proposes a more multifaceted view rather than just examining the impact of the West on the framing of Asian Studies

Mapping an Empire Matthew H. Edney, 2024-05-31 In this fascinating history of the British surveys of India Matthew H Edney relates how imperial Britain used modern survey techniques to not only create and define the spatial image of its Empire but also to legitimate its colonialist activities There is much to be praised in this book It is an excellent history of how India came to be painted red in the nineteenth century But more importantly Mapping an Empire sets a new standard for books that examine a fundamental problem in the history of European imperialism D Graham Burnett Times Literary Supplement Mapping an Empire is undoubtedly a major contribution to the rapidly growing literature on science and empire and a work which deserves to stimulate a great deal of fresh thinking and informed research David Arnold Journal of Imperial and Commonwealth History This case study offers broadly applicable insights into the relationship between ideology technology and politics Carefully read this is a tale of irony about wishful thinking and the limits of knowledge Publishers Weekly
