Human Reproduction

Human reproduction

Human reproduction is sexual reproduction involving male and female reproductive cells called gametes. The reproductive system includes organs called gonads that produce gametes and hormones; ducts for transport, storage and composition of gametes; accessory organs and glands for fluid secretion; and internal genitalia. Reproduction is regulated by hormones produced by the gonads, the hypothalamus and the pituitary gland. Fertilisation involves the introduction of sperm into the vagina. The sperm travels through the female reproductive tract until it encounters an ovocyte, a female sex cell. Fertilisation can then take place.

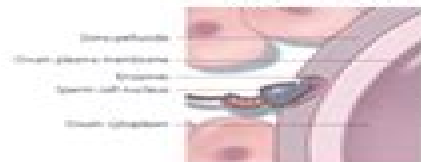

Male reproductive system

The adult male reproductive system is a complex of two primary external structures, the testes and the penis. The testes are divided into thousands of tiny compartments or lobules containing seminiferous tubules, tightly coiled structures where sperm formation takes place.

The testes are situated in a sac called the scrotum, which provides support and regulates the position of the testes relative to the body. The scrotum is located below the testes, near the perineum, an external compartment to maintain the proper temperature within the testes for sperm formation.

Seminiferous tubules produce sperm cells, which are released into the epididymis, a structure in the scrotum responsible for maturing the sperm and directing it to the vas deferens and penile urethra, the ducts that carry sperm out of the body.

Fusion of plasma membranes

Fertilization

The upper portion of the vagina leads to the canal for fertilisation. Millions of sperm travel through the female reproductive tract, with only a few reaching the egg. When a sperm reaches the egg, it releases its nucleus, which contains the genetic material of the sperm. The egg releases its nucleus, which contains the genetic material of the egg. The sperm and egg nuclei fuse, and the sperm nucleus and associated material enter the egg. Other sperm are prevented from entering by a chemical change in the zona pellucida.

Female reproductive system

The internal structure of the adult female reproductive system includes the vagina, uterus, ovaries and fallopian tubes. These structures form a pathway allowing the release of an egg cell, fertilisation, its growth and delivery of a developed fetus. The vagina is a muscular canal that receives the penis and provides a passage for sperm and menstrual discharge. The uterus is a hollow, pear-shaped organ with muscular walls that contract during childbirth. The inner lining of the uterus is the endometrium, which sheds during each menstrual cycle in preparation for implantation by a fertilised egg. This lining is shed during menstruation if fertilisation does not occur.

Spermatogenesis

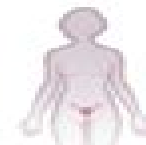

The ovaries, located on each side of the uterus, are responsible for producing ova as well as the female sex hormones estrogen and progesterone. Estrogen is responsible for the development of the female reproductive structures, menstrual characteristics, and breast development. Progesterone prepares the uterus lining for implantation of a fertilised egg and is necessary for breast milk production. The ovaries are connected to the uterus by the fallopian tubes, narrow ducts that provide a passageway for the egg to reach the uterus.

Ovulation & the menstrual cycle

The menstrual cycle refers to the sequence of events that occurs in the endometrium, the lining of the uterus. The cycle normally lasts approximately 28 days. The purpose is to prepare the uterus for possible pregnancy. The menstrual cycle is governed by the endocrine system. If fertilisation does not occur, declining estrogen and progesterone levels initiate menstruation and the cycle begins again.

Sex determination

Sex determination

Each parent contributes one sex chromosome. The mother always contributes an X sex chromosome, while the father contributes either an X or a Y sex chromosome. An XX combination produces a girl, while a XY combination produces a boy.
