often Reading in a new language is just like learning to read again You need to be reading as much as possible so you can grow as much as possible Take in as many different types of books as you can and read them until you can digest and retain the information in them Not only is reading often important to get used to the method of reading parallel texts but it also just gets you comfortable around your new language and helps you begin to think in that language when you re using it Essentially the more you read the better you ll speak read and write in the language that you re studying 3 Read out loud whenever possible This will probably make you uncomfortable at first because most of us don t regularly read out loud However it s very important to read books out loud when you re reading in a foreign language because it helps you with things like pronunciation rhythm etc      French-English Leon Smith,1902      Vingt Mille Lieues Sous Les Mers - Edition Illustree ,2007
