

Chemistry – Unit 6 Worksheet 1

After having observed molecular models which show 18.098 compounds, you discovered that certain particles are found to form geometrically charged ions. Each ion has a specific particle size. Based on these geometrically charged ions (anions), the following table shows the relative sizes of the particles. The particles are arranged in a table with the following information: the first column shows the relative sizes of the particles, the second column shows the relative sizes of the particles, the third column shows the relative sizes of the particles, and the fourth column shows the relative sizes of the particles. The particles are arranged in a table with the following information: the first column shows the relative sizes of the particles, the second column shows the relative sizes of the particles, the third column shows the relative sizes of the particles, and the fourth column shows the relative sizes of the particles.

1. After the first formula, what does the particle size of the first compound? The same and ions are also arranged in a table.
