Genesis Redux Jessica Riskin, 2010-02-15 Since antiquity philosophers and engineers have tried to take life's measure by reproducing it Aiming to reenact Creation at least in part these experimenters have hoped to understand the links between body and spirit matter and mind mechanism and consciousness

Genesis Redux examines moments from this centuries long experimental tradition efforts to simulate life in machinery to synthesize life out of material parts and to understand living beings by comparison with inanimate mechanisms

Jessica Riskin collects seventeen essays from distinguished scholars in several fields These studies offer an unexpected and far reaching result attempts to create artificial life have rarely been driven by an impulse to reduce life and mind to machinery On the contrary designers of synthetic creatures have generally assumed a role for something nonmechanical The history of artificial life is thus also a history of theories of soul and intellect Taking a historical approach to a modern quandary Genesis Redux is essential reading for historians and philosophers of science and technology scientists and engineers working in artificial life and intelligence and anyone engaged in evaluating these world changing projects

What Painting is James Elkins, 1999 Here Elkins argues that alchemists and painters have similar relationships to the substances they work with Both try to transform the substance while seeking to transform their own experience

Androids and Intelligent Networks in Early Modern Literature and Culture Kevin LaGrandeur, 2013 This book explores the creation and use of artificially made humanoid servants and servant networks by fictional and non fictional scientists of the early modern period Beginning with an investigation of the roots of artificial servants humanoids and automata from earlier times LaGrandeur traces how these literary representations coincide with a surging interest in automata and experimentation and how they blend with the magical science that preceded the empirical era These representations eerily prefigure modern robots androids and artificially intelligent networks and the art that is responsible for their creation blurs the edges between magic and science in a way that resonates especially with modern notions of cybernetics In the instances that this book considers the idea of the artificial factotum is connected with an emotional paradox the joy of self enhancement is counterpoised with the anxiety of self displacement that comes with distribution of agency In this way the older accounts of creating artificial slaves are accounts of modernity in the making a modernity characterized by the project of extending the self and its powers in which the vision of the extended self is fundamentally inseparable from the vision of an attenuated self This book discusses the idea that fictional artificial servants embody at once the ambitions of the scientific wizards who make them and society's perception of the dangers of those ambitions and represent the cultural fears triggered by independent experimental thinkers the type of thinkers from whom our modern cyberneticists descend The Ashgate Encyclopedia of Literary and Cinematic Monsters Jeffrey Andrew

Beloborodova,2020-06-04 The aim of this Element is to offer a reassessment of Beckett's alleged Cartesianism using the theoretical framework of extended cognition a cluster of present day philosophical theories that question the mind's brain bound nature and see cognition primarily as a process of interaction between the human brain and the environment it operates in The principal argument defended here is that despite the Cartesian bias introduced by early Beckett scholarship Beckett's fictional minds are not isolated skullscape Instead they are grounded in interaction with their fictional storyworlds however impoverished those may have become in the later part of his writing career The Works of Anatole France in an English Translation Anatole France,1920 Swiftly Sternward W. B. Gerard,E Derek Taylor,Robert G.

Walker,2011-04-07 These thirteen essays have been collected to honor Melvyn New professor emeritus Florida and are prefaced by a description of his scholarly career of more than forty years Suggesting the wide range of that career the first eight essays offer various critical perspectives on a diverse group of eighteenth century authors These include a reading of Eliot in the shadow of Pope a comparison of Gainsborough's final paintings and Sterne's Sentimental Journey a study of Johnson and casuistry a discussion of Smollett's view of slavery in Roderick Random a bibliographical study of a Lyttelton poem a comparison of Swift and Nietzsche and two essays about Fielding's Joseph Andrews Laurence Sterne the primary focus of Professor New's scholarship is also the focus of the final five essays which treat Sterne in contexts as disparate as the kabbalah abolitionist discourse local English church politics the use of the fragment and finally the culture of modernity

Science Fiction, Fantasy, & Horror ,1988 A comprehensive bibliography of books and short fiction published in the
