Methods in Chloroplast Molecular Biology M. Edelman, R. B. Hallick, Nam-Hai Chua, 1982 The NIH Record, 1990 Veterans and Agent Orange National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice, Committee to Review the Health Effects in Vietnam Veterans of Exposure to Herbicides (Eleventh Biennial Update), 2019-01-20 From 1962 to 1971 the U S military sprayed herbicides

over Vietnam to strip the thick jungle canopy that could conceal opposition forces to destroy crops that those forces might depend on and to clear tall grasses and bushes from the perimeters of US base camps and outlying fire support bases. Mixtures of 2,4-dichlorophenoxyacetic acid (2,4-D), 2,4,5-trichlorophenoxyacetic acid (2,4,5-T), picloram and cacodylic acid made up the bulk of the herbicides sprayed. The main chemical mixture sprayed was Agent Orange, a 50:50 mixture of 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T. At the time of the spraying, 2,3,7,8-tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin (TCDD), the most toxic form of dioxin, was an unintended contaminant generated during the production of 2,4,5-T and so was present in Agent Orange and some other formulations sprayed in Vietnam. Because of complaints from returning Vietnam veterans about their own health and that of their children, combined with emerging toxicologic evidence of adverse effects of phenoxy herbicides and TCDD, the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine was asked to perform a comprehensive evaluation of scientific and medical information regarding the health effects of exposure to Agent Orange, other herbicides used in Vietnam, and the various components of those herbicides, including TCDD. Updated evaluations were conducted every two years to review newly available literature and draw conclusions from the overall evidence. Veterans and Agent Orange Update 11 2018 examines peer-reviewed scientific reports concerning associations between various health outcomes and exposure to TCDD and other chemicals in the herbicides used in Vietnam that were published between September 30, 2014, and December 31, 2017, and integrates this information with the previously established evidence database. Monthly Catalogue, United States Public Documents, 1985

Nanoparticle-Protein Corona Ashutosh Kumar, Alok Dhawan, 2019-07-26. Nanoparticles have numerous biomedical applications including drug delivery, bone implants, and imaging. A protein corona is formed when proteins existing in a biological system cover the nanoparticle surface. The formation of a nanoparticle protein corona changes the behaviour of the nanoparticle, resulting in new biological characteristics and influencing the circulation, lifetime, accumulation, toxicity, cellular uptake, and agglomeration. This book provides a detailed understanding of nanoparticle protein corona formation, its biological significance, and the factors that govern the formation of coronas. It also explains the impact of nanoparticle protein interactions on biological assays, ecotoxicity studies, and proteomics research. It will be of interest to researchers studying the application of nanoparticles, as well as toxicologists and pharmaceutical chemists. Design of Nanostructures Himadri B. Bohidar, Kamla Rawat, 2017-06-14. Adopting a unique approach, this book provides a thorough one-stop introduction to nanoscience and self-assembly of nanomaterials composed of such materials as metals, metal oxides, metal sulphides, polymers, and biopolymers. Clearly divided into three sections covering the main aspects of nanoscience, the first part deals with the basic principles of nanoscale science. Alongside essential approaches and forces, this section also covers thermodynamics, phase transitions, and applications to biological systems. The second and third parts then go on to provide a detailed description of the synthesis of inorganic and organic nanoparticles, respectively. With its interdisciplinary content of
