,1925 Review of the New York City Watershed Protection Program National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Water Science and Technology Board, Committee to Review the New York City Watershed Protection Program, 2021-01-04 New York City's municipal water supply system provides about 1 billion gallons of drinking water a day to over 8.5 million people in New York City and about 1 million people living in nearby Westchester Putnam Ulster and Orange counties. The combined water supply system includes 19 reservoirs and three controlled lakes with a total storage capacity of approximately 580 billion gallons. The city's Watershed Protection Program is intended to maintain and enhance the high quality of these surface water sources. Review of the New York City Watershed Protection Program assesses the efficacy and future of New York City's watershed management activities. The report identifies program areas that may require future change or action including continued efforts to address turbidity and responding to changes in reservoir water quality as a result of climate change. Lake Victoria Monitored from Space Joseph Awange, 2020-12-17 This book employs a suite of remotely sensed products and advanced technologies to provide the first comprehensive space based sensing of Lake Victoria, the world's second largest freshwater lake that supports a livelihood of more than 42 million people, modulates regional climate but faces myriads of challenges. Proper understanding of the lake and changes in its physical dynamics e.g. water level, shorelines and areal dynamics resulting from the impacts of climate variation and climate change as well as anthropogenic e.g. hydropower and irrigation is important for its management as well as for strategic development before, during and after climate extremes e.g. floods and droughts in order to inform policy formulations, planning and mitigation measures. Owing to its sheer size and lack of research resources, commitment by regional governments that hamper its observations, however, it is a daunting task to undertake studies on Lake Victoria, relying solely on in situ boots on the ground measurements which are sparse, missing in most cases, inconsistent or restricted by governmental red tapes. To unlock the potentials of Lake Victoria, this book argues for the removal of obsolete Nile treaties signed between Britain, Egypt and Sudan in the 1920s and 1950s which prohibits its utilization by the upstream countries. The book is useful to those in water resources management and policy formulations, hydrologists, environmentalists, engineers and researchers. In a unique cross-disciplinary approach, the book articulates the various climatic impacts and explanations from natural and anthropogenic origins which affected Lake Victoria and its vicinity, including the drastic increase and depletion of water level in the Lake and dams, floods and droughts, water quality, security, crop health, food security and economic implications. With no exception, as in his many publications, Joseph L. Awange used data analysis methodologies including filtering, adjustment theory and robust statistics to quantify the hydrologic and other parameters and their estimated uncertainties. The book is recommended for readers from a diverse discipline including physical and social sciences, policy, law, engineering and disaster management. Professor C. K.
