Barrett, Louis Hugo Francescutti, 2020-10-30 For the first time in a thousand years Americans are experiencing a reversal in lifespan Despite living in one of the safest and most secure eras in human history one in five adults suffers from anxiety as does one third of adolescents Nearly half of the US population is overweight or obese and one third of Americans suffer from chronic pain the highest level in the world In the United States fatalities due to prescription pain medications now surpass those of heroin and cocaine combined and each year 10% of all students on American college campuses contemplate suicide With the proliferation of social media and the algorithms for social sharing that prey upon our emotional brains inaccurate or misleading health articles and videos now move faster through social media networks than do reputable ones This book is about modern health or lack of it The authors make two key arguments that our deteriorating wellness is rapidly becoming a health emergency and two that much of these trends are rooted in the way our highly evolved hardwired brains and bodies deal with modern social change The co authors a PhD from the world of social science and an MD from the world of medicine combine forces to bring this emerging human crisis to light Densely packed with fascinating facts and little told stories the authors weave together real life cases that describe how our ancient evolutionary drives are propelling us toward ill health and disease Over the course of seven chapters the authors unlock the mysteries of our top health vices why hospitals are more dangerous than warzones our addiction to sugar salt and stress our emotionally driven brains our relentless pursuit of happiness our sleepless society our understanding of risk and finally how world history can be a valuable tutor Through these varied themes the authors illustrate how our social lives are more of a determinant of health outcome than at any other time in our history and to truly understand our plight we need to recognize when our decisions and behavior are being directed by our survival seeking hardwired brains and bodies

Cognitive and affective control Gilles Pourtois, Wim Notebaert, Tom Verguts, Traditionally cognition and emotion are seen as separate domains that are independent at best and in competition at worst The French scientist and philosopher Blaise Pascal 1623 1662 famously said Le coeur a ses raisons que la raison ne connaît point The heart has its reasons that reason does not know Over the last century however psychologists and neuroscientists have increasingly appreciated their very strong reciprocal connections and interactions Initially this was demonstrated in cognitive functions such as attention learning and memory and decision making For instance an emotional stimulus captures attention e.g. Anderson Verguts Notebaert 2009 From this perspective cognitive control is not a cool encapsulated executive function but instead involves rapidly calculating the value of situational contextual and action cues Rushworth Behrens 2008 for the purpose of adapting the cognitive system toward future optimal performance A wide array of research has shed light on cognitive control and its interactions with affect or motivation Behaviorally important phenomena include how people respond to difficult stimuli e.g. incongruent stimuli task switches negative feedback or errors and how this influences subsequent task processing Neurally an important target structure has been the anterior cingulate cortex ACC and its connections to traditional emotional e.g. amygdala and cognitive areas e.g. pre motor cortex dorsolateral prefrontal cortex ACC seems to play a predominant role in integrating distant effects from remote cognitive and emotion systems in order to guide and optimize behavior The current special issue focuses on the bi directional link between emotion and cognitive control We invite studies that investigate the influence from emotion on cognitive control or vice versa the influence of cognitive control on emotion Contributions can be of different types We welcome empirical contributions behavioral or neuroscientific but also computational modeling theory or review papers By bringing together researchers from the traditionally separated domains we hope to further stimulate the crosstalk between emotion and cognitive control and thus to deepen our understanding of both

A Skeptic's Guide to Belief Ken Crispin,2019-04-04 What would happen if you faced your doubts set aside your preconceptions and decided to follow the path of truth wherever it might lead Most people whether believers or atheists doggedly defend what they have always believed Many see this as an expression of faith Yet there is something almost inexpressibly sad about the plight of people living out their lives in reliance upon beliefs they dare not question Perhaps that is why many of us come to a point at which we feel compelled to pursue the truth no matter what the implications But even if we found the courage to embark upon such a journey could we really find a path through the scientific philosophical experiential and theological thickets that surround the great questions of life And if we did would we know the truth and be set free Would we be forced to face a long feared despair Or would we find ourselves still staring impotently at an enigmatic universe This is a book unlike any other It addresses these questions with unflinching honesty drawing evidence from a diversity of scientific fields and subjecting the competing arguments to rigorous skeptical analysis

What Develops in Emotional Development? Michael F. Mascolo,Sharon Griffin,2013-11-22 The problem of development is central in the study of emotional life for two basic reasons First emotional life so clearly changes dramatically in the early years with new emotional reactions emerging against the backdrop of an increasing sensitivity to context and with self regulation of emotion emerging from a striking dependence on regulatory assistance from caregivers Such changes demand developmental analysis At the same time understanding such profound changes will surely inform our understanding of the nature of development more generally The complexity of emotional change when grasped will reveal the elusive nature of development itself At the outset we know that development is complex We must take seriously what is present at any given phase including the newborn period because a developmental analysis disallows something emerging from nothing Still it is equally nondevelopmental to posit that new forms of new processes were simply present in their precursors Rather development is characterized by transformations in which more complex structures and organization emerge from new integration of prior components and new capacities These new forms and organizations cannot be specified from prior conditions but are due to transactions of the evolving organism with its environment over time They are not simply in the genome and they are not simply conditioned by the environment They are the result of the develop mental process Fear Jan Plamper,Benjamin Lazier,2012-12-30 This volume provides a cross disciplinary examination of fear that most unruly of our emotions by offering a broad survey of the psychological biological and philosophical basis of fear in historical and contemporary contexts The contributors leading figures in clinical psychology neuroscience the social sciences and the humanities consider categories of intentionality temporality admixture spectacle and politics in evaluating conceptions of fear Individual chapters treat manifestations of fear in the mass panic of the stock market crash of 1929 as spectacle in warfare and in horror films and as a political tool to justify security measures in the wake of terrorist acts They also describe the biological and evolutionary roots of fear fear as innate versus learned behavior in both humans and animals and conceptions of human passions and their self mastery from late antiquity to the early modern era Additionally the contributors examine theories of intentional and non intentional reactivity the process of fear memory coding and contemporary psychology s emphasis on anxiety disorders Overall the authors point to fear as a dense and variable web of responses to external and internal stimuli Our thinking about these reactions is just as complex In response this volume opens a dialogue between science and the humanities to afford a more complete view of an emotion that has shaped human behavior since time immemorial Handbook of Personality at Work Neil Christiansen,Robert Tett,2013-07-18 Personality has emerged as a key factor when trying to understand why people think feel and behave the way they do at work Recent research has linked personality to important aspects of work such as job performance employee attitudes leadership teamwork stress and turnover This handbook brings together into a single volume the diverse areas of work psychology where personality constructs have been applied and investigated providing expert review and analysis based on the latest advances in the field
