These observations on the unusual behavior of  $\beta$ -HSE, together with recent high pressure TMA work, suggest that compression of the solid  $\beta$ -phase is associated with a structural transition. The present work confirms that during the compression of the  $\beta$ -phase, the  $\beta$ -phase undergoes a phase transition to a new high pressure phase and that this transition is first order. The transition from  $\beta$  to  $\beta'$  is associated with compression of the  $\beta$ -phase and the change in volume is approximately 10%.
