

There was a day which I went for the local market to purchase some goods.

One day, a oldman bumped on me and bragged that I was the one who bumped on him by saying I don't look while walking.

We kept doing that until all things and giving the same excuse and it I realized the poor man by, then I saw the object around which he purposely bumped to me.

We tried to give the same excuse whenever I walked and was that I saw him creeping and the message of the market children and he bumped not at purpose.

With this, that oldman became ashamed and never repeated.

That's it for adults who have bad manners.

See you next time!

THE MOAT HOUSE OR SIR JASPER'S FAVOURITE NIECE ELEANORA H. STOOKE,2023-06-03 Celia made no reply but a look of decided discontent crept over her face She was a very pretty little girl with fair hair blue eyes and a delicate pink and white complexion Her sister was a pale sallow child whose one beauty was a pair of large grey eyes which rendered her otherwise plain countenance remarkably attractive Both girls were neatly attired in serviceable blue serge dresses somewhat the worse for wear but whereas Joy wore no ornament whatever the neck of Celia s frock was fastened by a cheap brooch set with imitation brilliants which she had saved her pocket money to purchase and her golden locks were tied back with a bright blue ribbon Celia was the greater favourite of the sisters with people as a rule for she was invariably good tempered before strangers and eager to please it was only at home that she ever allowed her discontent with the circumstances of her life to be apparent and then when her mother s face saddened at her grumblings she would become repentant and declare that she had not meant all she had said that she was quite happy really only it would be so nice to have a little more money to spend
