

Magie Et Amour

Eva Evers Rosander

Magie Et Amour:

, Our fighting sisters Natalya Vince, 2015-08-01 Between 1954 and 1962 Algerian women played a major role in the struggle to end French rule in one of the twentieth century's most violent wars of decolonisation. This is the first in-depth exploration of what happened to these women after independence in 1962. Based on new oral history interviews with women who participated in the war in a wide range of roles from urban bombers to members of the rural guerrilla support network, it explores how female veterans viewed the post-independence state and its multiple discourses on the Algerian woman in the fifty years following 1962. It also examines how these former combatants' memories of the anti-colonial conflict intertwine with, contradict or coexist alongside the state-sponsored narrative of the war constructed after independence. Making an original contribution to debates about gender, nationalism and memory, this book will appeal to students and scholars of history and politics.

Cultural Anthropology of the Middle East, 1992 During the last two decades, the number of anthropologists conducting research in the Middle East has increased considerably. Together, they have produced an abundance of valuable studies, often based on prolonged periods of ethnographic fieldwork. Cultural Anthropology of the Middle East: A Bibliography offers a comprehensive survey of their results. The first volume, published in 1992, covered publications which appeared between 1965 and 1987. The second volume brings the bibliography further up to date, listing publications between 1988 and 1992, and adds some 260 titles which were published up through 1987. As in the first volume, the majority of the titles are annotated.

The Magical Life of Berber Women in Kabylia Makilam, 2007 Kabyle women from Algeria were believed to have been relegated to a role subjugated by dominant males in which they were confined to reproduction, nature and their sensibilities. The weaknesses created by this inequality were thought to be compensated for by their living inconspicuous lives practicing magic, especially in love. Makilam rejects these preconceived ideas and demonstrates that women's magic was expressed in every domain of their daily lives: pottery making, food provision, preparation and weaving. In fact, the traditional Kabyle society was incapable of functioning without women, who ensured its material and spiritual unity.

Transformation Des Identités Féminines Eva Evers Rosander, 1997 Contains 13 essays which discuss formal women's organizations, informal associations related to rural and semi-urban organization of work, women's religious associations and individual strategies outside the framework of associations.

Picturing Shakespeare Jean-Louis

CLARET, 2024-05-07 This study investigates the capacity of Shakespeare's texts obviously destined for stage performances to generate images and mental colours in the readers and in the spectators' minds Such notions as Ut pictura poesis and the paragone are discussed in the first part of this book along with the function and nature of colours After considering the sets of correspondences and the major differences between texts and images the author presents and analyzes some of his own illustrations of Shakespearean characters Jean-Louis Claret both a university professor specialized in Shakespeare's theatre and an illustrator proposes to shed light on the process that led him from the perusal of the written text to the visualization of visages The voice of poets is unconventionally called upon to shed light on the complex mechanisms he describes

Symbols and Magic in the Arts of Kabyle Women Makilam, 2007 Makilam's research on the history of women and Berber culture one of North Africa's most ancient civilizations demonstrates that the Kabyle women's magic practices graphic symbols and rites of passage permit a new interpretation of their cultural identity from those that have traditionally been attributed to them by Western observers This completely new vision of the symbolic grammar of the decorations notably expressed in pottery weaving tattoos and wall paintings leads us to reconsider the meaning of the Kabyle arts and contributes to our knowledge of Maghreb cultures and the role of women in traditional societies

Going Global Amal Amireh, Lisa Suhair Majaj, 2014-05-01 This book explores the problematic of reading and writing about third world women and their texts in an increasingly global context of production and reception The ten essays contained in this volume examine the reception both academic and popular of women writers from India Bangladesh Palestine Egypt Algeria Ghana Brazil Bolivia Guatemala Iraq Israel and Australia The essays focus on what happens to these writers poetry fiction biography autobiography and even to the authors themselves as they move between the third and first worlds The essays raise general questions about the politics of reception and about the transnational character of cultural production and consumption This edition also provides analyses of the reception of specific texts and of their authors in their context of origin as well as the diverse locations in which they are read The essays participate in on going discussions about the politics of location about postcolonialism and its discontents and about the projects of feminism and multiculturalism in a global age
