Lybbert, Gracious Diiro, Dick Kawooya, Sacha Wunsch-Vincent, 2017 Uganda's innovation performance in recent years has consistently outpaced other low income and Sub Saharan African countries Though encouraging this nascent progress will only benefit the broader Ugandan population if policy makers address specific constraints in the innovation systems of the critical agri food sector which is hampered by low productivity and profitability In this report we explore these constraints using an agricultural value chains framework with particular focus on the Robusta Coffee Planting Material Pipeline and tropical fruit processing

Informational Peripheries Ayona Datta, Fenna Imara Hoefsloot, 2025-08-04 Urbanisation and urban life in a digital age needs to be examined through a lens of information encompassing both its politics and its geographies The periphery in an information age is located simultaneously across the geographic centre and edge across social material and digital worlds Moving beyond current scholarship in urban and regional studies this book presents a case for informational peripheries as an analytical lens to understand the uneven fragmented and disconnected geographies of urban peripheries in the Global South While unplanned urbanisation has been a key discourse in the production of urban periphery in the Global South Informational Peripheries argues that the coming of an informational age destabilises the geographic location of the urban periphery Informational peripheries capture the complexities of digital material and social dispersal and fragmentation that emerge from informational extraction redlining manipulation and bypassing Exclusions are marked by both geographic and informational distance from the state It includes subjects who are uncountable as well as territories that are digitally socially and materially unmappable This approach provides an important vantage point for interrogating the political and technological apparatuses that are reconfiguring the notion of the urban in a digital age Ugandan English Christiane Meierkord, Bebwa Isingoma, Saudah Namyalo, 2016-10-20 Ugandan English is a variety that has scarcely been noticed in past research This timely volume brings together African and European scholars in a first ever collection of articles that offer comprehensive discussions of the historical and present day sociolinguistics of English in Uganda and fine grained analyses of the structural characteristics of and attitudes to this hitherto largely unknown variety Using rich archive corpus and interview data as well as ethnographic and observational methods the various contributions paint a comprehensive picture of Ugandan English as distinct from other East African Englishes and as characterized by nativisation despite a still strong exonormative orientation reflecting the modern nation s status as a post protectorate under the influence of globalisation Apart from advancing our understanding of Ugandan English itself the individual chapters contribute to theoretical debates on language contact and variation as regards the influence of substrate languages founder populations language ideologies and socio economic factors

India-Africa Economic Relations in the New Global Economy Rick Rowden, 2025-03-18 While there have been many books about China s growing economic role in Africa this book explores the much less well known story of India s growing economic role in Africa And like the big debates about China s role in Africa this book similarly asks if India is acting as a helpful development partner in Africa an exploitative new colonizer or if the answer ultimately has to do with the degree of agency exercised by African governments While the book documents the significant increase in Indian aid trade and FDI in Africa in the new millennium it also offers much more It comprehensively looks at theories of economic development the debates about the role of trade and industrial policies in economic development strategies colonial and post colonial literature and controversial features of today s global political economy as the background to study Africa and frames Africa India economic relations in these broad contexts The book reviews the history of India's diplomacy trade and investment in African countries since decolonization with a focus on the increased economic ties of the past two decades. The main question examined is about the longterm impact that India's economic relations are having in African economies and if India is helping Africa to successfully develop over time or not. The author examines India's economic and strategic interests in the African region and offers a comparative analysis of Africa's trade with India, China, the European Union, and other African nations. The book also explores a number of outstanding issues in India-Africa relations today such as Africa's role as a source of oil, gas, and critical minerals needed by India, the lifesaving role of Indian generic medicines across the continent, the nature of the agricultural development model that India is introducing in Africa, and key areas where Indian and African governments are cooperating in the international arena. The book offers a critical and in-depth look into the partnerships India has developed with African countries and contributes to the debate on economic relations between a more developed emerging market like India and less developed countries. A major contribution to the emerging area of South-South economics, this book, part of the Critical Political Economy of South Asia series, will be useful for scholars and researchers of economics, development economics, development studies, public policy, diplomacy, African studies, political economy, South Asian economics, and international politics and trade.

Expulsiones Saskia Sassen, 2015-02-16. La economía global no se expande sin consecuencias: creciente desigualdad y desempleo, cada vez más poblaciones desplazadas o encarceladas, destrucción de la tierra y del agua. Se trata de dislocaciones socioeconómicas que no pueden ser explicadas con las herramientas tradicionales de la sociología en los habituales términos de pobreza e injusticia. De acuerdo con Saskia Sassen, esas dislocaciones se comprenden con mayor precisión si se conceptualizan como tipos de expulsiones. En las últimas décadas, dice la autora, se ha presenciado un fuerte crecimiento de la cantidad de personas y empresas expulsadas de los órdenes sociales y económicos centrales de nuestro tiempo. Expulsiones que no son espontáneas sino producidas con instrumentos que incluyen desde políticas elementales hasta instituciones técnicas y complejos sistemas que requieren mucho conocimiento especializado y formatos institucionales intrincados El abordaje de la lógica de las exclusiones pone en evidencia un sistema cuyas consecuencias son devastadoras incluso para quienes piensan que no son vulnerables De las finanzas a la minería las técnicas de expulsión depredan conocimientos intereses y logros Saskia Sassen dibuja conexiones sorprendentes para iluminar la sistematicidad de estas expulsiones poniendo al descubierto el modo en que la gran complejidad de la economía global hace que sea difícil trazar líneas de responsabilidad para los desplazamientos desalojos y erradicaciones que provoca como para que quienes se benefician del sistema se sientan responsables del daño que causan

The Experiment Must Continue Melissa Graboyes, 2015-11-09 The Experiment Must Continue is a beautifully articulated ethnographic history of medical experimentation in East Africa from 1940 through 2014 In it Melissa Graboyes combines her training in public health and in history to treat her subject with the dual sensitivities of a medical ethicist and a fine historian She breathes life into the fascinating histories of research on human subjects elucidating the hopes of the interventionists and the experiences of the putative beneficiaries Historical case studies highlight failed attempts to eliminate tropical diseases while modern examples delve into ongoing malaria and HIV AIDS research Collectively these show how East Africans have perceived research differently than researchers do and that the active participation of subjects led to the creation of a hybrid ethical form By writing an ethnography of the past and a history of the present Graboyes casts medical experimentation in a new light and makes the resounding case that we must readjust our dominant ideas of consent participation and exploitation With global implications this lively book is as relevant for scholars as it is for anyone invested in the place of medicine in society
