The Mama's Boy Myth Kate Stone Lombardi, 2012-03-15 A New York Times contributor offers a radical reexamination of a hot button issue of the mother and son relationship and advocates the end of the mama's boy taboo New York Times contributor Kate Stone Lombardi unveils the surprisingly close relationship between mothers and sons Mother after mother confessed to Lombardi that her husband brothers and even female friends and family criticize the fact that she is too close to her sons Many of these women are often startled by the strong connection they feel with their sons but rarely do they talk about it because society tells them to push their little boys away and not baby them with too much cuddling and comforting It is as if there were an existing playbook based on gender preconceptions dating back to Freud Oedipus and beyond that prescribes the way mothers and their sons should interact Lombardi's much needed narrative is the first and only book to share truly revealing interviews with mothers who have close relationships with their sons as well as interviews with these women's sons and husbands Lombardi persuasively argues that the rise of the new male one who is more emotionally intelligent and more sensitive without being less manly is directly attributable to women who are rejecting the mama's boy taboo Highlighting new scientific studies The Mama's Boy Myth begins a fresh story one that will be welcomed by mothers fathers and sons alike only in the last few decades that literary critics and film scholars have begun to analyse the work. The emerging critical scholarship on the Partition and its aftermath has deepened our understanding of the relationship between historical trauma, collective memory and cultural processes and this book provides critical readings of literary and cinematic texts on the impact of the Partition both in the Punjab and in Bengal. The collection assembles studies on Anglophone writings with those on the largely unexplored vernacular works and those which have rarely found a place in discussions on the Partition. It looks at representations of women's experiences of gendered violence in the Partition riots and how literary texts have filled in the lack of the human dimension in Partition histories. The book goes on to highlight how the memory of the Partition is preserved and how the creative arts' relation to public memory and its place within the public sphere has changed through time. Collectively the essays present a nuanced understanding of how the experience of violence, displacement and trauma shaped postcolonial societies and subjectivities in the Indian subcontinent. Mapping the diverse topographies of Partition-related uncertainties and covering both well-known and lesser-known texts on the Partition, this book will be a useful contribution to studies of South Asian History, Asian Literature and Asian Film.
