

Next, we colored the cap with some Rubber Mask Greasepaint, or RMG.

RMG has a castor oil base and so doesn't destroy the latex like a mineral oil based make-up would. Erica mixed a color that matched our model's face and stippled it on all over the cap, feathering it onto his skin.

You can then add any adjustment colors, like reds, to really bring it to life. You may also want to stipple hair stubble on as well. Please refer to the Facial Hair section on pages 73-74 to see how to get that buzzed down hair look.

Once all your coloration is done, powder the make-up. If you want to bring a little shine back after powdering, you can use a water based spray sealer, or even stipple a very light coat of KY Jelly over it.

Right: the finished cap applied by Erica Preus.

P.S...remember, no matter how good it looks now, in 30 minutes or so, it will start to creep and wrinkle.
