This new history of the French language allows the reader to see how the language has evolved for themselves. It combines texts and extracts with a readable and detailed commentary allowing the language to be viewed both synchronically and diachronically. Core texts range from the ninth century to the present day, highlighting central features of the language whilst a range of shorter texts illustrate particular points. The inclusion of non-literary as well as literary texts serves to illustrate some of the many varieties of French whether in legal, scientific, epistolary, administrative or liturgical or in more popular domains including attempts to represent spoken usage. This is essential reading for the undergraduate student of French.

Oeuvres Jacques Delille, 1832 The French Student's Manual; Or, Colloquial and Grammatical Exercises Arsène Napoléon Girault, 1848 Oeuvres de Delille Jacques Delille, 1833 L'Apocalypse des animaux (1 Hen 85-90): une propagande militaire? Daniel Assefa, 2007-09-30 For the majority of scholars the Animal Apocalypse is a militant text, a piece of pro-Maccabean propaganda. This text however develops theological reflections that are distinctly different from a justification of an armed struggle. Its themes are even incompatible with the Maccabean movement. It is impossible to condemn the Second Temple and at the same time mobilise people for a fight in order to purify that very Temple. After dealing with text critical issues, this work challenges the thesis that the text is military propaganda through the use of narrative and historical approaches. The analyses, besides proposing a new way of studying an apocalypse, spell out the peculiarity and the significance of the theology of the Animal Apocalypse in connection with the biblical history of Israel and the theology of the Qumran community. L'eau, enjeux politiques et théologiques, de Sumer à la Bible Stéphanie Anthonioz, 2009-10-23 This book investigates a corpus of royal inscriptions and literary texts with special emphasis on those that are mythological and biblical, stretching over several millennia from the early days of Sumer to the Biblical period in order to determine the ways in which the concept of water was used in particular the way it functions in the political and theological ideology of the time. Three literary motifs are the object of a careful study: the crossing of water, the flood and the water of abundance. Though their study shows diversity in evolution, transmission and reception, it appears that their function is common at the heart of the Mesopotamian political theology of royal mediation. Histoire de l'institution de la Fête-Dieu, avec la vie des Bienheureuses Julienne et Ève qui en furent les premières promulgatrices ... Citation favorable: Car Dieu a tant aimé le monde qu'il a envoyé son Fils unique afin que quiconque croit en lui ne périsse point, mais qu'il ait la vie éternelle en Jésus-Christ. Vivre Sans Jésus-Christ, c'est comme un bateau sans gouvernail. Astarte Ralph Milbanke Earl of Lovelace, 1905 The French Language in the Seventeenth Century Peter Rickard, 1992 The sixty French texts edited here are all direct commentaries by contemporary authors on the French language in the 17th century. By this time French had begun to assert its independence in its written and printed form; it was being used for a wide variety of literary technical and administrative purposes Its practitioners not only successfully challenged the hitherto dominant position of Latin but also began for the first time to discuss and analyse for its own sake the language which was now their preferred medium for expression hence in the first half of the seventeenth century a growing number of publications on the nature and characteristics of French The texts demonstrate the sustained critical preoccupation with the welfare of the French language in the 17th century and illustrate the various ways in which the writers of the age contributed to its development as an instrument of literary expression and social intercourse
