The UK and its coastline

As we are an island nation, the coastline has always been an important resource to us. It gives us important trade routes with the rest of the world, provides many opportunities for tourism and recreation and is home to millions of people. However, coastal processes are constantly changing the coastline, and because of this our coastline needs careful management.

As waves break they push up the beach carrying sand with them. Gravity pulls them back down the slope of the beach to the sea. This is called Beachrock.

Constructive waves Build up (deposit) beaches. Are lower and less frequent. Break more gently. Move a large swash. Push sand up a beach.

Destructive waves Erode away beaches. Are tall and frequent. Break powerfully. Move a large swash. Drag sand back out to sea. The coastline erodes at different rates depending on the resistance of the coastal geology. Resistant rocks (granite and limestone) erode slowly. Less resistant rocks (clay) erode quickly forming cliffs.

Coastal landforms These are distinctive features of the coast created by coastal processes (erosion, transportation and deposition). Erosional features Cliffs, Caves, Arches, Stacks, and Wave cut platforms. Depositional features Beaches, Sand dunes, Bars and Spits.

Beaches are formed when constructive waves with a strong swash wash sand into a sheltered bay where it is deposited to build up a beach. The sand continues to be transported down the coast as it becomes trapped between the headlands on either end of the bay.

Spits are formed due to long shore drift and deposition. If the coastline continually changes angle where transportation is moving sand along the coast, constructive waves may deposit a beach out to sea. This is called a spit. They are often found across river mouths and estuaries.

Cliffs - Erode and retreat backwards over time leaving behind a rocky wave cut platform at sea level. This may be covered over by a beach. 1. The waves erode a wave cut notch into the base of the cliff. 2. The top of the cliff becomes weakened by weathering (the action of the weather). 3. The weakened cliff collapses as it is not supported at the bottom. 4. The cliff retreats backwards as pieces fall off.

Stacks Like Old Harry are formed as a headland is attacked over time by erosive waves. 1. Waves erode and enlarge notches and cracks (fissures) in the headland. 2. Some cracks are enlarged into caves. 3. A cave may erode right through the headland to form an arch. 4. The top of the arch is weakened by weathering and eventually collapses leaving a free standing stack.

When flooding and erosion is a problem along the coast e.g. Minstead, defences are used to reduce the effects. This is called coastal management. Hard engineering is about building solid structures to stop erosion and floods. Soft engineering is using natural materials and processes to reduce the effects. In Minstead £52.5 million has been spent on new sea walls, rock armour and groynes to protect the town and Bunting holiday resort from storm flooding.

Coastal processes, caused by waves constantly change our coastline.

Erosion - Waves wear away the coast.

Transportation - Waves move eroded material from one place to another.

Deposition - Waves dump eroded material to build up coastal features e.g. beaches.

Long shore drift is how waves transport sediment along the coast. Waves come in to shore at an angle, blown by the wind. The swash of the wave washes sand at an angle up and across the beach. The backwash pulls sand back out at 90° to the beach. Sediment is moved along the beach with the zig zag motion of each wave.

Types of erosion

Hydraulic action - The force of the waves crash into cliffs and smash them apart. Abrasion - Waves pick up sand and shingle and use it to smooth and wear away rocks. Corrosion - The motion of waves moves pebbles on beaches, which smooths and rounds them. Corrosion - Sea water is capable of slowly dissolving rocks like limestone and chalk.

Hard engineering Soft engineering

Sea walls - A strong and expensive (often curved) wall that reflects the power of waves back out to sea, protecting valuable property behind from flooding and erosion.

Beach nourishment - Adding sand to a beach to widen it and make it higher so it absorbs wave energy more effectively.

Groyne - A wooden structure that traps sand moving along the coast by Long Shore drift. The groyne sand makes a wider beach which absorbs (dissipates) wave energy.

Sand dune regeneration - Encouraging sand dunes to develop. They absorb wave energy, protecting the land behind.

Rock armour - Large piles of boulders that break waves and absorb (dissipate) wave energy in the gaps between them.

Managed retreat - Letting the sea eat the land so that the land and the sea can reach a new balance.
