The Future of NATO Expansion Zoltan Barany, 2003-07-21 In 1999 three East Central European states Poland Hungary and the Czech Republic gained membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Professor Barany argues that once it began the Alliance should continue the enlargement process Nevertheless he maintains that only states that satisfy NATO's membership criteria should be allowed to join Through an extensive analysis of four countries Bulgaria Romania Slovakia and Slovenia who at the time of the book's original publication in 2003 were NATO aspirants Barany demonstrates that they were in several important respects unprepared for membership and that there was no pressing reason for NATO's haste Barany argues that while NATO should be clear that its doors remain open to qualified candidates the Alliance should hold off further expansion until prospective members will become assets rather than liabilities

The Fragmentation of Yugoslavia A. Pavkovic, 2000-07-24 War World War I created the state of Yugoslavia in 1918 and in a series of wars starting in 1991 Yugoslavia was replaced by several new and smaller states The victors had always presented these wars as wars of national liberation each war was fought for the sacred cause of national liberty The book traces the origins of ideologies appealing to the cause of national liberty and outlines their use in the creation of new states and new political regimes in the Balkans

The Break-up of Yugoslavia and International Law Peter Radan, 2004-01-14 The demise of the former Yugoslavia was brought about by various secessionist movements seeking international recognition of statehood This book provides a critical analysis from an international law perspective of the break up of Yugoslavia. Although international recognition was granted to the former Yugoslav republics of Slovenia, Croatia, Bosnia Hercegovina and Macedonia, the claims of secessionist movements that sought a revision of existing internal federal borders were rejected. The basis upon which the post secession international borders were accepted in international law involved novel applications of international law principles of self determination of peoples and uti possidetis. This book traces the developments of these principles and the historical development of Yugoslavia's internal borders. Media Discourse and the Yugoslav Conflicts Pål

Kolstø, 2016-04-29. In spite of the growing literature on discourse analysis, the relationship of discourse to violent non violent outcomes of conflict is an under researched area. This book combines theories on ethnic conflict, identity construction and discourse analysis with a comprehensive and inclusive survey of the countries of the former Yugoslavia. It presents an understanding of the interrelationship between words and deeds grounded through an extensively close analysis of film, television and newspapers samples taken from the period. This combination of ground breaking applications of theory with detailed empirical case studies will make Media Discourse and the Yugoslav Conflicts of key interest to scholars across a range of social sciences including sociology, discourse analysis, media conflict and peace studies as well as those concerned with ethnopolitical conflict. Faces on the Ballot Alan Renwick, Jean-Benoit Pilet, 2016-02-05. One of the key shifts in contemporary politics is the trend towards greater personalization. Collective actors such as political parties are losing relevance. Citizens are slowly dealigning from these actors and individual politicians are therefore growing in importance in elections in government, within parties and in media reporting of politics. A crucial question concerns how this new pattern could be restructuring politics over the long run, notably whether the personalization of politics is changing the institutional architecture of contemporary democracies. The authors show that the trend towards personalization is indeed changing core democratic institutions. Studying the evolution of electoral systems in thirty one European democracies since 1945, they demonstrate that since the 1990s there has been a shift towards more personalized electoral systems. Electoral systems in most European countries now allow voters to express preferences for candidates, not just for political parties. And the weight of these voters preferences in the allocation of seats has been increased in numerous countries. They examine the factors that appear to be driving this evolution, finding that the personalization of electoral systems is associated with the growing gap between citizens and politics. Politicians and legislators appear to perceive the personalization of electoral systems as a way to address the democratic malaise and to restore trust in politics by reducing the role of political parties in elections. The book also shows, however, that whether these reforms have had any success in achieving their aims is far less clear. Comparative Politics is a series for students, teachers and researchers of political science that deals with contemporary government and politics. Global in scope, books in the series are characterised by a stress on comparative analysis and strong methodological rigour. The series is published in association with the European Consortium for Political Research. For more
