

Mitosis

How do living things grow and repair themselves?

Why?

Living things must grow and develop. At times they suffer injuries or damage, or cells simply wear out. New cells must be formed for the organism to survive. What process must occur to make a new, properly-functioning cell?

Model 1 – Mitosis as Part of the Cell Cycle

1. Refer to Model 1. List the four phases in the mitosis process.
2. Where is mitosis in the cell cycle? Before _____ and after _____.
3. What three phases of the cell cycle are considered interphase?
4. Refer to the cell cycle shown.
 - a. How many cells are present at the beginning of mitosis?
 - b. How many cells are present at the end of mitosis?

Overview of functions of MPF and much more Optical Studies on Cell Division (Mitosis) Norman Miyamoto Baker, 2010

Mitosis is the process by which cells after having duplicated their DNA content segregate chromosomes equally into two identical daughter cells. Mitosis is a very short part of a normal cell cycle usually 24 hours and ranges from 30 minutes to an hour depending on cell type and environmental conditions. During this incredibly short amount of time the cell undergoes several complex rearrangements biomechanically and biochemically. Microtubules 20 nm width dimer polymers play an essential role as the building blocks that provides the cytoskeleton and mitotic spindle for the cell provide the force that segregates chromosomes anaphase to satisfaction of tension and attachment based checkpoints metaphase anaphase transition. To elucidate the key role microtubules have in mitosis drugs such as taxol and nocodazole have been used to impart catastrophic global damage to the mitotic spindle and study the effects on cellular division. However catastrophic global damage can not answer specific questions regarding highly spatially localized damage and temporally transient damage. In elucidating the role of microtubules chromosomes and other key biological structures there is the need for a transient perturbation on the mitotic process. To study the effects of transient perturbation on mitosis a Laser microscope system Robolase was developed to deliver spatially localized 0.4 μ m and temporally specific disruption inside living cells nanosurgery. Specifically the affect of ablating chromosome tips mitotic spindles and chromatid are examined and the relationship between damaged sites and pathways controlling the progression of the cell cycle and DNA damage pathways are examined. In conclusion an optically based method for studying mitosis with transient perturbation has been developed and used to determine that chromosome tip disruption affects cytokinetic progression prolonged disruption of mitotic spindle reveals force sensing in the metaphase spindle and double strand breaks of DNA recruit CENP A in addition to known DNA damage proteins.

Identifying the motive force is central to explaining chromosome motions during mitosis. Presently there is no consensus on what it is. The author has proposed a minimal assumptions model for the dynamics of post attachment chromosome motions based on nanoscale electrostatics. Given the electrical properties of tubulin and the dynamic instability of microtubules it is possible to account for prometaphase post attachment metaphase and anaphase chromosome motions within a comprehensive model. The model addresses all of the following in a unified manner: Efficiency of aster and spindle assembly and the motive force for the motion of asters and forming half spindles. Chromatid pair attachment. Motion of monovalently attached chromatid pairs. Motion of bivalently attached chromatid pairs and chromosome congression. Metaphase chromatid pair oscillations. Chromatid separation and anaphase A chromosome motion. Anaphase B pole separation. An ab initio calculation of the maximum tension force exerted by a microtubule during mitosis that falls within the experimental range. Poleward force generation of chromosomes at poles with associated microtubule flux.

Understanding Meiosis and Mitosis Stephanie

Harris,2021-11-16 Meiosis and mitosis are the processes of cell division that are studied in cell biology Meiosis is a type of cell division that is used to produce gametes like sperm or egg cells It is used by sexually reproducing organisms This process includes two rounds of cell division that leads to the formation of four cells with one copy of each chromosome Mitosis is the process in which chromosomes are replicated into two new nuclei This results in cells that are genetically identical and which retain the same number of chromosomes It is concerned with the transfer of parent cell s genome into two subsequent daughter cells The processes of meiosis and mitosis differ in two aspects These are recombination and the number of chromosomes The topics included in this book are of utmost significance and bound to provide incredible insights to readers Different approaches evaluations methodologies and studies related to this field have been included herein Coherent flow of topics student friendly language and extensive use of examples make this book an invaluable source of knowledge
