

Some key features of academic reports

Please note! This handout describes and models general features of academic reports. It is very likely that in your specific discipline only some of these features will apply – and there may be other requirements not included here. Departmental requirements for reports especially vary widely, so please do check your course or unit handbook, or ask a subject tutor or lecturer.

Reports, along with essays, are one of the most common types of written assignment on university courses. (For more on the differences between reports and essays please see the handout Reports and essays: key differences.)

There is no absolutely right way to structure a report – the structure depends on the purpose. In general, however, academic reports feature some of the following sections:

1 Title page

2 Author declaration

This is a simple form, usually available from your department or faculty office, which you have to sign and include with any report (or indeed essay) written for your course. It confirms formally that the assignment submitted is entirely your own work.

3 Abstract (sometimes called Executive Summary)

An abstract is a short (often around 150 words in length) summary of the whole report. It should therefore be written last. Unlike a conclusion, the abstract needs to include a brief overview of all the stages of the report, not just the results. (One purpose of an abstract is to give just enough information to enable a prospective reader to judge whether they need to read the full report.)

Hint: If you are new to writing abstracts, one approach is to write, in order, one or two sentences to represent each of the sections of your report. Have a look at abstracts or executive summaries in reports in the Library or on the Internet to get an idea of the style in which they are generally written.

4 Acknowledgements

This is a separate page acknowledging the support of those people who have contributed to the assignment. An acknowledgements page is normally necessary only in major reports.

Authority and scientific and consumer education communication experts initiated the process of developing a communication toolkit on food biotechnologies. The toolkit is to be used by governmental agencies that assess the safety of foods derived from biotechnologies to better communicate with the general public. The toolkit will contain a series of guiding documents with various sample materials. The target users of the toolkit itself are the food safety and biosafety competent authorities in the government sector, whereas the sample materials are for the general public. A step by step approach has been planned to develop the sample materials with the first steps being the analysis of existing consumer education and communication materials worldwide, the identification of gaps in the information that is needed for consumers to gain a better understanding and the selection of consumer education and communication materials to be used as a basis to develop sample materials. This document summarizes these initial steps.

A Guide to Homeownership, 1995

Management Research Susan Rose, Nigel Spinks, Ana Isabel Canhoto, 2014-07-25

For many post graduate students undertaking a research project for the first time is a daunting prospect. Gaining the knowledge and skills needed to do research typically has to be done alongside carrying out the project itself. Students often have to conduct their research independently, perhaps with limited tutor contact. What is needed in such situations is a resource that supports the new researcher on every step of the research journey from defining the project to communicating its findings.

Management Research Applying the Principles provides just such a resource. Structured around the key stages of a research project, it is designed to provide answers to the questions faced by new researchers but without neglecting the underlying principles of good research. Each chapter includes next steps activities to help readers apply the content to their own live research project. The companion website provides extensive resources including video tutorials to support the development of practical research skills. The text reflects the richness and variety of current business and management research both in its presentation of methods and techniques and its choice of examples drawn from different subject disciplines, industries and organizations.

Management Research Applying the Principles combines diversity of coverage with a singularity of purpose to help students complete their research project to a rigorous standard.

Academic Non-Fiction R. Sooryamoorthy, 2025-03-24

This book offers comprehensive directions to crafting academic nonfiction that is both rigorous and captivating, filling a critical gap in the genre. While academic nonfiction plays a vital role in fostering knowledge based societies and driving economic growth, there has long been a need for a resource that helps authors create works that are as engaging as they are informative. Designed for both aspiring and established writers, this book provides practical advice and innovative techniques to elevate nonfiction writing It covers everything from selecting marketable topics and developing effective writing habits to managing time and navigating the complexities of the publication process Unlike most writing guides it emphasises how to infuse nonfiction with the allure and engagement necessary to reach a broad audience without compromising accuracy or depth With short digestible chapters insider tips on proposal writing and insights into the peer review process this book serves as a step by step roadmap to transforming academic writing into compelling works Essential for writers aiming to produce nonfiction that not only informs but also resonates with readers this resource is an indispensable tool for creating impactful scholarly work

Behavioural Public Policy in Australia Sarah Ball, 2022-09-14

Using rich ethnographic data and first hand experience Ball presents a detailed account of Australia's attempts to incorporate behavioural insights into its public policy Ball identifies three competing interpretations of behavioural public policy and how these interpretations have influenced the use of this approach in practice The first sees the process as an opportunity to introduce more rigorous evidence The second interpretation focuses on increasing compliance cost savings and cutting red tape The last focuses on the opportunity to better involve citizens in policy design These interpretations demonstrate different solutions to a series of dilemmas that the Australian Public Service and others have confronted in the last 50 years including growing politicisation technocracy and a disconnect from the needs of citizens Ball offers a detailed account of how these priorities have shaped how behavioural insights have been implemented in policy making as well as reflecting on the challenges facing policy work more broadly An essential read for practitioners and scholars of policy making especially in Australia
