Oversight Hearings on School-to-work Transition Programs United States. Congress. House. Committee on Education and Labor. Subcommittee on Employment Opportunities,1992 This document records the oral and written testimony given at a congressional hearing on school to work transitions focusing on four local programs that have involved cooperation between industry labor schools and the local community to help young people bridge the gap between school and work The four programs described are as follows 1 the General Motors United Auto Workers Quality Education Program designed to bring female and minority high school students into the skilled trades 2 BOSS Business as On Site Schools a cooperative effort with Southern Bell the Communication Workers of America and the Alachua County School Board in Florida in which at risk students work at a Southern Bell facility for 20 hours per week under the direction of a mentor 3 the Pennsylvania Youth Apprenticeship Program of the Industrial Modernization Center in Pennsylvania which is operated as a machine shop youth apprenticeship program primarily for the metal trades and 4 the Roosevelt Renaissance Program a high school restructuring program in Portland Oregon All witnesses emphasized the cooperation needed in their programs and the successes they had achieved More such efforts were advocated and federal legislation addressing the need for such programs is being drafted KC Jobs for the Poor Timothy J. Bartik,2001-06-11 Even as the United States enjoys a booming economy and historically low levels of unemployment millions of Americans remain out of work or underemployed and joblessness continues to plague many urban communities racial minorities and people with little education In Jobs for the Poor Timothy Bartik calls for a dramatic shift in the way the United States confronts this problem Today most efforts to address this problem focus on ways to make workers more employable such as job training and welfare reform But Bartik argues that the United States should put more emphasis on ways to increase the interest of employers in creating jobs for the poor or the labor demand side of the labor market Bartik s bases his case for labor demand policies on a comprehensive review of the low wage labor market He examines the effectiveness of government interventions in the labor market such as Welfare Reform the Earned Income Tax Credit and Welfare to Work programs and asks if having a job makes a person more employable Bartik finds that public service employment and targeted employer wage subsidies can increase employment among the poor In turn job experience significantly increases the poor s long run earnings by enhancing their skills and reputation with employers And labor demand policies can avoid causing inflation or displacing other workers by targeting high unemployment labor markets and persons who would otherwise be unemployed Bartik concludes by proposing a large scale labor demand program One component of the program would give a tax credit to employers in areas of high unemployment To provide disadvantaged workers with more targeted help Bartik also recommends offering short term subsidies to employers particularly small businesses and nonprofit organizations that hire people who otherwise would be unlikely to find jobs With experience from subsidized jobs the new workers should find it easier to obtain future year round employment Although these efforts would not catapult poor families into the middle class overnight Bartik offers a powerful argument that having a full time worker in every household would help improve the lives of millions Jobs for the Poor makes a compelling case that full employment can be achieved if the country has the political will and adopts policies that address both sides of the labor market Copublished with the W E Upjohn Institute for Economic Research Barrios Norteños Dennis Nodín Valdés,2000 Printbegr nsninger Der kan printes 10 sider ad gangen og max 40 sider pr session General Motors Plant Closings United States.
