

AP Biology Genetics Problems

Unassisted Exercise (Homework)

1. Sample Problem: Shortness is an autosomal recessive trait in the hypothetical plant species Salsola. In population that consists of a fixed of 100 individuals, effort is required to find a short plant. What is the probability either a homozygous recessive will be genotyped?
2.
2. Short-stemmed grasses are dominant in a meadow with the tall plant from another meadow. What will be the phenotypic ratio after selection for selfing? What will be the genotypic ratio and the phenotypic ratio?
3. They will all be tall, half homozygous dominant and the other half heterozygous.

4. What is probability of getting a homozygous recessive short plant from a cross of two tall heterozygous and one tall heterozygous and one homozygous dominant selfing?
What would be heterozygous and the other half heterozygous and tall.

5. The parent the short plant from the tall heterozygous plant would give the tall or short allele. The short plant from the tall heterozygous plant would give the tall or short allele. The tall plant from the tall heterozygous plant would give the tall or short allele. The tall plant from the tall heterozygous plant would give the tall or short allele.

Short: 1/4, Heterozygous: 1/2, Tall: 3/4

6. Assume the heterozygous short plant is crossed with a tall plant. What is the probability of getting a short plant from the cross? What is the probability of getting a tall plant?

Short: 1/2, Heterozygous: 1/2, Tall: 1/2

7. Assume the heterozygous short plant is crossed with a tall plant. What is the probability of getting a short plant from the cross? What is the probability of getting a tall plant?

Short: 1/2, Heterozygous: 1/2, Tall: 1/2

8. Assume the heterozygous short plant is crossed with a tall plant. What is the probability of getting a short plant from the cross? What is the probability of getting a tall plant?

Short: 1/2, Heterozygous: 1/2, Tall: 1/2

9. Is there a difference in the probability of getting a short plant from the cross? What is the probability of getting a tall plant?

Yes, the probability is 1/2.

10. Assume the heterozygous short plant is crossed with a tall plant. What is the probability of getting a short plant from the cross? What is the probability of getting a tall plant?

Short: 1/2, Heterozygous: 1/2, Tall: 1/2

11. Assume the heterozygous short plant is crossed with a tall plant. What is the probability of getting a short plant from the cross? What is the probability of getting a tall plant?

Naomi Sykes,2014-08-28 Zooarchaeology or the study of ancient animals is a frequently side lined subject in archaeology This is bizarre given that the archaeological record is composed largely of debris from human animal relationships be they in the form of animal bones individual artifacts or entire landscapes and that many disciplines including anthropology sociology and geography recognise human animal interactions as a key source of information for understanding cultural ideology By integrating knowledge from archaeological remains with evidence from texts iconography social anthropology and cultural geography Beastly Questions Animal Answers to Archaeological Issues seeks to encourage archaeological students researchers and those working in the commercial sector to offer more engaging interpretations of the evidence at their disposal Going beyond the simple confines of what people ate this accessible but in depth study covers a variety of high profile topics in European archaeology and provides novel interpretations of mainstream archaeological questions This includes cultural responses to wild animals the domestication of animals and its implications on human daily practice experience and ideology the transportation of species and the value of incorporating animals into landscape research the importance of the study of foodways for understanding past societies and how animal studies can help us to comprehend issues of human identity and ideology past present and future Teaching Undergraduate Science Linda C.

Hodges,2023-07-03 This book is written for all science or engineering faculty who have ever found themselves baffled and frustrated by their undergraduate students lack of engagement and learning The author an experienced scientist faculty member and educational consultant addresses these issues with the knowledge of faculty interests constraints and day to day concerns in mind Drawing from the research on learning she offers faculty new ways to think about the struggles their science students face She then provides a range of evidence based teaching strategies that can make the time faculty spend in the classroom more productive and satisfying Linda Hodges reviews the various learning problems endemic to teaching science explains why they are so common and persistent and presents a digest of key ideas and strategies to address them based on the research she has undertaken into the literature on the cognitive sciences and education Recognizing that faculty have different views about teaching different comfort levels with alternative teaching approaches and are often pressed for time Linda Hodges takes these constraints into account by first offering a framework for thinking purposefully about course design and teaching choices and then providing a range of strategies to address very specific teaching barriers whether it be students motivation engagement in class ability to problem solve their reading comprehension or laboratory research or writing skills Except for the first and last chapters the other chapters in this book stand on their own i e can be read in any order and address a specific challenge students have in learning and doing science Each chapter summarizes the research explaining why students struggle and concludes by offering several teaching options categorized by how easy or difficult they are to implement Some for example can work in a large lecture class without a great expenditure of time others may require more preparation and a more adventurous approach to teaching Each strategy is accompanied by a table categorizing its likely impact how much time it will take in class or out and how difficult it will be to implement Like scientific research teaching works best when faculty start with a goal in mind plan an approach building on the literature use well tested methodologies and analyze results for future trials Linda Hodges message is that with such intentional thought and a bit of effort faculty can succeed in helping many more students gain exciting new skills and abilities whether those students are potential scientists or physicians or entrepreneurs Her book serves as a mini compendium of current research as well as a protocol manual a readily accessible guide to the literature the best practices known to date and a framework for thinking about teaching

Primates, Pathogens, and Evolution Jessica F. Brinkworth, Kate Pechenkina, 2013-08-30 The immune systems of human and non human primates have diverged over time such that some species differ considerably in their susceptibility symptoms and survival of particular infectious diseases Variation in primate immunity is such that major human pathogens such as immunodeficiency viruses herpesviruses and malaria inducing species of Plasmodium elicit striking differences in immune response between closely related species and within primate populations These differences in immunity are the outcome of complex evolutionary processes that include interactions between the host its pathogens and symbiont commensal organisms The success of some pathogens in establishing persistent infections in humans and other primates has been determined not just by the molecular evolution of the pathogen and its interactions with the host but also by the evolution of primate behavior and ecology microflora immune factors and the evolution of other biological systems To explore how interactions between primates and their pathogens have shaped their mutual molecular evolution Primates Pathogens and Evolution brings together research that explores comparative primate immune function the emergence of major and neglected primate diseases primate microorganism molecular interactions and related topics This book will be of interest to anyone curious as to why infectious diseases manifest differently in humans and their closest relatives It will be of particular interest to scholars specializing in human and non human primate evolution epidemiology and immunology and disease ecology Primates Pathogens and Evolution offers an overview and discussion of current findings on differences in the molecular mechanics of primate immune response as well as on pathogen mediated primate evolution and human and non human primate health
