International Relations between the Two Wars

Russian Revolution

"The October Russian Revolution and the 1944-8 takeovers in Central and Eastern Europe demonstrate that war is the decisive factor in the success of communist takeovers" Discuss.

In October 1917, the Bolshevik Party staged the first communist revolution in history. With this, the new Russian leadership removed Russia from the Great War and began to put into action its ideological ideas for world revolution. Then, in 1919 the Third Communist International (Comintern) was established with the role of exporting the revolution and creating a 'World Federative Republic of Soviets' which was seen as crucial for the survival of the Russian soviet state.^[1] Despite this, and the economic problems of the interwar years, the only other country to witness a communist revolution before the Second World War was Outer Mongolia (and briefly, Hungary). Then, a second wave of revolutions (more accurately described as takeovers) took place and saw communism take hold of the majority of Eastern Europe. This suggests that there is a strong link between the conditions brought about by war and communist takeovers. The two World Wars brought about many different situations which were beneficial to the communists. Of most significance was the revolutionary atmosphere fostered by war, the destruction of existing regimes, the significance of soviet victory and the impact of Axis defeat. However, the role of war is only fully understood in conjunction with the strength and tactics of the Russian communists in both of these periods. Furthermore, there were factors other than those induced by war which facilitated these revolutions and takeovers.

A key Leninist concept is the idea that imperialist war, as a result of conflicting imperialist monopolies, signifies the highest stage of capitalist development. With the increased exploitation of the proletariat, revolution is then inevitable.^[2] The growing number of strikes in Russia and the decisive events of February 1917 led the Bolsheviks to believe that analysis to be correct. This idea was built upon with the advent of fascism, which was seen as the last attempt by capitalism to hold onto power.^[3] The revolutionary nature of the war was a key point at the first session of the Communist Information Bureau (Cominform) of 1947, at which it was stated that, 'We have met an epoch of great changes which have come about as a result of the last war'.^[4] The great strains brought about by war caused a general radicalisation in the populations of Eastern European states and led to broad expectations for change. The legacy of right wing radicalism in the largely peasant based societies of Eastern Europe meant that they were generally susceptible to the rhetoric of the communists. Specifically in Czechoslovakia and Hungary where there were genuinely democratic coalition governments, Ivan T. Berand argues that 'the communists could most easily sail the rough waves of radical plebeian revolutionary spirit and expectations'.^[5] Those persecuted under Nazism and previous regimes, such as national minorities and Jews, alongside young radical workers found the utopianism of communism appealing. Such sentiments would have been reinforced by the massive economic impact of war. For example, Poland, Yugoslavia and Hungary lost half of their railroads and 75% of their bridges, hugely affecting production and therefore standards of living.^[6] Mass popularity was most evident in Czechoslovakia, where the
