Insistent Joey Ramp-Adams,2025-08-26 When you mix systemic bias discrimination and neuroscience academia with a determined brain injured woman and a service dog you get a powerhouse team of science influencers Insistent chronicles a woman s fight to find meaning and regain her life after a horrific accident where she broke twenty three bones and suffered a traumatic brain injury In constant pain unable to filter environmental stimuli or comprehend spoken language and having lost the ability to speak she isolated herself living in an abyss of darkness and hopelessness The darkness laughed at her feeding on her pain and confusion telling her she was a burden to everyone Faced with immeasurable adversity and the decision whether to live or end it all she chose to fight and find meaning in her life but first she must find hope Hope she found in the eyes of a fluffy white Golden retriever with soft brown eyes named Sampson Wanting to understand what was happening in her brain and rebuild her life she embarked on an educational journey in neuroscience Doing so after a traumatic brain injury was ambitious Doing so with a service dog was unprecedented as service dogs were not allowed in science laboratories Refusing to allow an academic system to break her spirit and make her just go away as many hoped she would she used their resistance and opposition to fuel an entire movement changing policy and culture in science education across the globe with Sampson the Service Dog in Science by her side

Planet of the Blind Stephen Kuusisto,2013-08-07 The world is a surreal pageant writes Stephen Kuusisto Ahead of me the shapes and colors suggest the sails of Tristan s ship or an elephant s ear floating in air though in reality it is a middle aged man in a London Fog rain coat which billows behind him in the April wind So begins Kuusisto s memoir Planet of the Blind a journey through the kaleidoscope geography of the partially sighted where everyday encounters become revelations struggles or simple triumphs Not fully blind not fully sighted the author lives in what he describes as the customs house of the blind a midway point between vision and blindness that makes possible his unique perception of the world In this singular memoir Kuusisto charts the years of a childhood spent behind bottle lens glasses trying to pass as a normal boy the depression that brought him from obesity to anorexia the struggle through high school college first love and sex Ridiculed by his classmates his parents in denial here is the story of a man caught in a perilous world with no one to trust until a devastating accident forces him to accept his own disability and place his confidence in the one relationship that can reconnect him to the world the relationship with his guide dog a golden Labrador retriever named Corky With Corky at his side Kuusisto is again awakened to his abilities his voice as a writer and his own particular place in the world around him Written with all the emotional precision of poetry Kuusisto s evocative memoir explores the painful irony of a visually sensitive individual in love with reading painting and the everyday images of the natural world faced with his gradual descent into blindness Folded into his own experience is the rich folklore the phenomenon of blindness has inspired throughout history and legend
