Resolving Labor and Employment Disputes Ross E.

Davies, 2012-08-01 In today's political and economic climate broad and easy agreement with the basic premise of labor law to stimulate the economy by putting more money into the pockets of working people is not likely. Bad economic times are generally not good for labor organization and labor standards. There is of course still an important for labor and employment and good practices to help resolve employment disputes. New York University's venerable and prestigious Center for Labor and Employment Law has always been dedicated to the underlying principles of labor law as expressed in the National Labor Relations Act seventy five years ago despite recent economic challenges unforeseen at that time. The Center's 2010 conference the 63rd in this highly influential series was built around a stocktaking of the current condition of labor law in the United States focusing on the continuities and disparities that characterize practice in the field today. This volume contains papers presented at that meeting all here updated to reflect recent developments. Extending beyond the NLRA itself contributors discuss the effects of later legislation such as the Wagner and Taft Hartley Acts of 1947 agencies such as the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs and proliferating connections between labor relations law and intellectual property law. Experts from both the practicing bar and academia eighteen in all call on their unique strengths to address such issues as the following: new applications of the 10(j) injunction remedies for unlawful discharges in organizing campaigns confidentiality agreements legitimate employer interests reasonableness standard for enforcement of covenants not to compete criminal prosecutions under the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act the role of statistical evidence in systemic discrimination cases certification for class actions cultivating a plan prevent protect culture of compliance and employee representation election regulation. The contributors emphasize the ways in which labor law and policy can be part of the great conversation about how to restore prosperity encourage business and create good jobs. Dedicated to ensuring a realistic and fair national labor policy for the future this important publication offers definitive current scholarship toward that goal. As such it will be of inestimable value to practitioners government officials academics and others interested in developments in U.S. employment and labor relations law and practice.

Sven Dinklage, 1997-05-27 Inhaltsangabe Abstract Companies in today's business world are under a constant pressure they have to get as close as possible to the customer they have to become ever more flexible and they need to reduce costs In order to face these challenges some organisational structures are more likely to promise success than others The characteristics of these structures are no secret but companies often have the problem that they don't know how to put them into practice The present work is intended to give an answer to this question Having analysed what had been written about putting organisational change into practice I tested my ideas by a series of ten interviews which took place in companies of the German production sector Six points were identified as essential

- 1 The problem and the objectives of the project should be clear for all participants
- 2 The company should dispose of enough time and financial resources as well as a trusting working climate and a supportive top and middle management
- 3 Borderless communication is necessary especially concerning the evolution of the change project and the personal consequences for each person
- 4 The employees should be able to participate actively in elaborating the change project in decision making and in identifying possibilities to stimulate motivation This participation should be reflected in an adequate bonus system
- 5 Continuous training for all laying special attention on group leaders is important in such areas as group work communication and motivation

The mentioned recommendations could be useful for the managers of companies which are thinking about a reorganisation That would enable them to avoid mistakes made by other companies The following mistakes were the most important ones Impatience and the expectation that there will be a magic solution it might take up to five years to reach the desired state The non implication of the workforce in introducing the change process result the project is being blocked from their side Lack of communication which creates rumours about the coming change process result anxiety is created and the best workers will try to find another job Out of date bonuses which are not favourable in order to reach the company's global objectives such as individual bonuses and competition stimulators between groups Inhaltsverzeichnis Table of Contents FOREWORD5
