Information Retrieval Series Books:

Readings in Information Retrieval Karen Sparck Jones, Peter Willett, 1997 This compilation of original papers on information retrieval presents an overview covering both general theory and specific methods of the development and current status of information retrieval systems Each chapter contains several papers carefully chosen to represent substantive research work that has been carried out in that area each is preceded by an introductory overview and followed by supported references for further reading

Information Retrieval Systems Gerald J. Kowalski, 2007-08-23 The growth of the Internet and the availability of enormous volumes of data in digital form have necessitated intense interest in techniques to assist the user in locating data of interest The Internet has over 350 million pages of data and is expected to reach over one billion pages by the year 2000 Buried on the Internet are both valuable nuggets to answer questions as well as a large quantity of information the average person does not care about The Digital Library effort is also progressing with the goal of migrating from the traditional book environment to a digital library environment The challenge to both authors of new publications that will reside on this information domain and developers of systems to locate information is to provide the information and capabilities to sort out the non relevant items from those desired by the consumer In effect as we proceed down this path it will be the computer that determines what we see versus the human being The days of going to a library and browsing the new book shelf are being replaced by electronic searching the Internet or the library catalogs Whatever the search engines return will constrain our knowledge of what information is available An understanding of Information Retrieval Systems puts this new environment into perspective for both the creator of documents and the consumer trying to locate information

Information Retrieval David A. Grossman, Ophir Frieder, 2004-10-21 Interested in how an efficient search engine works Want to know what algorithms are used to rank resulting documents in response to user requests The authors answer these and other key information retrieval design and implementation questions This book is not yet another high level text Instead algorithms are thoroughly described making this book ideally suited for both computer science students and practitioners who work on search related applications As stated in the foreword this book provides a current broad and detailed overview of the field and is the only one that does so Examples are used throughout to illustrate the algorithms The authors explain how a query is ranked against a document collection using either a single or a combination of retrieval strategies and how an assortment of utilities are integrated into the query processing scheme to improve these rankings Methods for building and compressing text indexes querying and retrieving documents in multiple languages and using parallel or distributed processing to expedite the search are likewise described This edition is a major expansion of the one published in 1998 Besides updating the entire book with current techniques it includes new sections on language models cross language information retrieval peer to peer processing XML search mediators and duplicate document detection

Effective Online Searching Christine L. Borgman,Dineh Moghdam,Patti K.
