Redmond,2005 Interpersonal Communication offers a blend of theory and skills that students can use to become other oriented mindfully considerate of the thoughts needs and values of others Fueled by the authors conviction that skills inform principles principles inform skills Interpersonal Communication Relating to Others maintains a careful balance between theoretical and skills oriented material How Then Shall We Live Krivanek,2000-03-01 How Then Shall We Live Values for Interpersonal Communication is a hybrid between a standard college text in interpersonal communication and a book that will enable you to understand the communication patterns and habits that can make or break your life No other skill is being identified today in business education medicine and the helping professions as a need in human growth and development more than interpersonal communication But interpersonal skills without VALUES will only serve to technically prepare people for experiences that quite naturally require them to understand and integrate values into the way they communicate This is why values are the focus of this first values based text in the field of speech communication Students As Real People Rob Anderson,1979-01-01 A teacher of communication expresses his concern for thousands of students who are cheating themselves out of a worthwhile education by falling into the accepted role of nonperson uninvolved in the education process In this book the author fosters a belief that success or failure in college depends on communication interdependent efforts of people in a relationship to generate common meaning He proposes to get students to realize that their education is something other students can help them develop as much as teachers The author uses a personal style of writing to talk with the students He uses examples from the students immediate campus environment in challenging them to question their roles in the educational process Written for and tested in interpersonal communication courses the book is also appropriate for teacher education courses orientation to college life courses and for college counseling centers
