The Report: Kenya 2014 Oxford Business Group, 2014-11-13 The country has a strong private sector and received encouraging forecasts of new oil gas and water reserves which if harnessed appropriately bode well for future growth While a pending international court case resulting from prior elections provoked a measure of uncertainty the country s medium to long term economic outlook is robust With over 40% of the population under the age of 15 Kenya stands to benefit from a significant demographic dividend provided that sufficient jobs can be found when this population bulge enters the workforce The country has a reasonably sized industrial base competitive infrastructure and a large agricultural sector all of which offer opportunities for capital intensive investment

Negotiating Identities in Contemporary Africa Toyin Falola, Emmanuel M.

Mbah, 2023-08-29 Negotiating Identities in Contemporary Africa Gender Religion and Ethno cultural Identities explores the changing dynamics of identities in Africa with a focus on gender ethno cultural and religious identity Toyin Falola and Emmanuel M Mbah argue that because identity defines who we are as individuals or groups studies on African identities must focus on understanding the changing dynamics in the socio economic and political spheres in the continent These chapters cover subjects such as women s career identity gender roles and knowledge childlessness ethnocentrism and democracy cultural identity through theater Black identity in the diaspora and diasporic consciousness Using existing scholarship the chapters in this edited volume challenge our understanding of what identity entails and provide new discussions on the hitherto politicized historiography of some identities in Africa

World Development Report 2015

World Bank, 2014-12-04 Development economics and policy are due for a redesign In the past few decades research from across the natural and social sciences has provided stunning insight into the way people think and make decisions Whereas the first generation of development policy was based on the assumption that humans make decisions deliberatively and independently and on the basis of consistent and self interested preferences recent research shows that decision making rarely proceeds this way People think automatically when deciding they usually draw on what comes to mind effortlessly People also think socially social norms guide much of behavior and many people prefer to cooperate as long as others are doing their share And people think with mental models what they perceive and how they interpret it depend on concepts and worldviews drawn from their societies and from shared histories The World Development Report 2015 offers a concrete look at how these insights apply to development policy It shows how a richer view of human behavior can help achieve development goals in many areas including early childhood development household finance productivity health and climate change It also shows how a more subtle view of human behavior provides new tools for interventions Making even minor adjustments to a decision making context designing interventions based on an understanding of social preferences and exposing individuals to new experiences and ways of thinking may enable people to improve their lives The Report opens exciting new avenues for development work It shows that poverty is not simply a state of material deprivation but also a tax on cognitive resources that affects the quality of decision making It emphasizes that all humans including experts and policy makers are subject to psychological and social influences on thinking and that development organizations could benefit from procedures to improve their own deliberations and decision making It demonstrates the need for more discovery learning and adaptation in policy design and implementation The new approach to development economics has immense promise Its scope of application is vast This Report introduces an important new agenda for the development community

Thus Until Emilia Ilieva, Reuben Matheka, 2025-08-04 Thus Until A History of Egerton University is a thorough historical chronological and well researched account of Egerton University from a whites only college when it started in 1939 through to the expansion it has experienced over the years culminating in being a full university More than any other university in Kenya Egerton has a long and colourful history but like all the other universities it has suffered from the political economic and financial challenges of the time especially since the double intake of the 1990s Chapter One provides the required background to the study highlighting agricultural and educational policies and steering away from the Happy Valley hype so characteristic of the period The reader will learn about the Egerton family in Chapter Two and particularly about Lord Egerton himself and the colonial circumstances within which he lived The chapter dispels some of the popularly held myths about him Chapter Three deals with the beginnings of the college and the various structural and curriculum experiments tried out and the kind of enrolment and students it experimented with as an all white establishment The chapter ends with Africans beginning to agitate for change With great attention to detail the later chapters put the university in a broader local and international context thereby increasing its relevance to society A History of Egerton University though heavily footnoted and with a detailed bibliography is written in a simple easy flowing and accessible style

Discourses of Globalisation and Higher Education Reforms Joseph Zajda, W. James Jacob, 2022-03-15 This book examines some of the major higher education reforms and policy shifts globally particularly in the light of recent shifts in quality and standards driven education and policy research It critiques the neo liberal ideological imperatives of current higher education and policy reforms and illustrates the way that changes in the relationship between the state and higher education policy affect current trends in higher education reforms Using diverse comparative education paradigms from critical theory to historical comparative research the chapters focus on globalisation ideology and higher education reforms and examine both the reasons and outcomes of higher education reforms and policy change The book analyses and evaluates the policy shifts in methodological approaches to globalisation and higher education reforms and their impact on education policy and pedagogy The book contributes in a very scholarly way to a more holistic understanding of the nexus between globalisation comparative education research and higher education reforms

The Skills Balancing Act in Sub-Saharan Africa Omar Arias,David K. Evans,Indhira Santos,2019-01-31 Despite strong recent economic growth Sub Saharan Africa has levels of economictransformation poverty reduction and skill development far below those of other regions Smart investments in developing skills aligned with the policy goals of productivity growth inclusion and adaptability can help to accelerate the region s economic transformation in the 21st century Sub Saharan Africa's growing working age population presents a major opportunity to increase shared prosperity. Countries in the region have invested heavily in building skills; public expenditure on education increased sevenfold over the past 30 years and more children are in school today than ever before. Yet systems for building skills in this population have fallen short and these shortcomings significantly impede economic prospects. In half of the countries, fewer than two in every three children complete primary school; even fewer reach and complete higher levels of education. Learning outcomes have been persistently poor, leading to substantial gaps in basic cognitive skills, literacy, and numeracy among children, young people, and adults. The literacy rate of the adult population is below 50 percent in many countries; functional literacy and numeracy rates are even lower. Systemwide change is required to achieve significant progress. Multiple agencies at the central and local levels are involved in skills development strategies, making skills everyone's problem, but no one's responsibility. Policies and reforms need to build capacity for evidence-based policies and create incentives to align the behaviors of all stakeholders with the pursuit of national skills development goals. The Skills Balancing Act in Sub Saharan Africa: Investing in Skills for Productivity, Inclusivity, and Adaptability lays out evidence to inform the policy choices that countries will make in skill investments. Each chapter addresses a set of specific questions, drawing on original analysis and synthesis of existing studies to explore key areas: How the skills appropriate to each stage of the life cycle are acquired and what market and institutional failures affect skills formation; What systems are needed for individuals to access these skills, including family investments, private sector institutions, schools, and other public programs; How those systems can be strengthened; How the most vulnerable individuals, those who fall outside the standard systems and have missed critical building blocks in skills acquisition, can be supported. Countries will face trade-offs, often stark ones that will have distributional impacts and a bearing on their development path. Committed leaders, reform coalitions, and well-coordinated policies are essential for taking on the skills balancing act in Sub Saharan Africa.

Agribusiness competitiveness: Applying analytics, typology, and measurements to Africa Shishodia, Mahika, Babu, Suresh Chandra, 2017-07-02. Agribusiness has a major role to play in the transformation of the agricultural sector in Africa. With the demand for high-value food products increasing around the world, the production and export of these goods represents an opportunity to achieve increases in income and employment. To capture the benefits of this trend and capitalize on this opportunity for long term agricultural growth agribusiness in Africa must become more competitive In addition to improving competitiveness increasing agricultural productivity and food security are also major challenges in African agricultural development In this paper we compare the agribusiness competitiveness of African countries and develop typologies connected with their food security and agricultural productivity status The typologies reveal various stylized facts on the competitiveness of agribusiness to help nations prioritize issues for agricultural development and growth We develop the measures of agribusiness competitiveness and apply them to African countries Additionally we present policy implications and lessons for increasing the competitiveness of agribusiness in African countries ECCWS 2021 20th
