

- Q.1] a) Explain why a government might introduce subsidies for food.
- b) Discuss the impacts, specifically focussing on the negative consequences that may arise from the government's decision to subsidise food.

Answers (Time : 50 min)

A subsidy is a form of economic aid by the government to economic sectors, firms, individuals or consumers to provide them aid. Food qualifies as a primary product i.e. a product created by cultivating raw materials that does not require a manufacturing process.

The United States of America provided a subsidy to producers of corn, which has been depicted in the diagram beside.

The law of demand states that there is a negative causal relationship between the price and quantity demanded of a product. However, since ~~there~~ the introduction of so a subsidy is a non price factor, ~~there~~ there is a rightward shift in the supply curve. Owing to the law of demand, the ~~demand~~ quantity demand expands to the point.

The government may want to introduce subsidies

The Political Economy of City Branding Ari-Veikko Anttiroiko, 2014-02-24 Globalization affects urban communities in many ways One of its manifestations is increased intercity competition which compels cities to increase their attractiveness in terms of capital entrepreneurship information expertise and consumption This competition takes place in an asymmetric field with cities trying to find the best possible ways of using their natural and created assets the latter including a naturally evolving reputation or consciously developed competitive identity or brand The Political Economy of City Branding discusses this phenomenon from the perspective of numerous post industrial cities in North America Europe East Asia and Australasia Special attention is given to local economic development policy and industrial profiling and global city rankings are used to provide empirical evidence for cities characteristics and positions in the global urban hierarchy On top of this social and urban challenges such as creative class struggle are also discussed The core message of the book is that cities should apply the tools of city branding in their industrial promotion and specialization but at the same time take into account the special nature of their urban communities and be open and inclusive in their brand policies in order to ensure optimal results This book will be of interest to scholars and practitioners working in the areas of local economic development urban planning public management and branding
