with actionable strategies At the Intersection Thomas Rosteck,1999-01-01 This provocative volume is based on the premise that cultural studies and rhetorical studies address specific and parallel questions about culture critical practice and interpretation and that opening up a dialogue between them can enhance both and provide a more complete understanding of society Noted scholars across a variety of disciplines examine overlaps and contradictions between these approaches as well as critical and pedagogical issues that surface with their linkage Noun Combination in Interlanguage Christiane

Bongartz,2011-04-20 This monograph examines the effects of first language typology on the interlanguage of learners of English as a second language Adapting William Rutherford s 1983 view of interlanguage as the typological intersection between the first language and the second language the study demonstrates how first language effects subtly shape learner choices even at near native proficiency Grounded in the tradition of transfer research and in the research program in generative grammar the evidence presented shows the distribution of noun noun compounds such as the love song and phrasal noun combinations such as the song about love in interlanguage data These two patterns it is argued are systematically related by determiner properties and the process of noun incorporation Obtained from a multi task cross sectional experiment the data illustrates that learners with Czech as their first language use phrasal constructs the song about love significantly more often in production than learners with Mandarin Chinese as their first language whose preferred choice are noun noun compounds the love song The differences between the learner groups reflect the use of overt case marking in the first language Czech and the absence of overt case marking in the first language Mandarin Chinese

Music at the Intersection of Brazilian Culture Elisa Macedo Dekaney,Joshua A. Dekaney,2021-04-22 Music at the Intersection of Brazilian Culture takes an interdisciplinary approach by utilizing several aspects of Brazilian music race and food as a window to understanding Brazilian culture with music at the core Through a holistic understanding of the Brazilian experience exploring issues of race colonization sustainable development and the contributions of the three distinct ethnic groups in the making of Brazil the authors create a narrative based on their own recollection of memories traditions customs sounds and landscapes that they experienced in Brazil Each engaging section begins with an overview of the topic that places it in historical context and then focuses on each subtopic with a thorough presentation of the content as well as suggested activities that can be implemented in the classroom The chapters conclude with a list of useful references resources and audio recording examples which are available on Spotify to present readers with a musical landscape of the folktales These can be found online via the Routledge catalogue page for this book This book is an essential resource for students and teachers of music and cultural studies as it unpicks complex issues to help readers better understand and appreciate Brazilian culture At the Intersection of Texts and Material Finds Stuart S. Miller,2019-03-11 Stuart Miller examines the hermeneutical challenges posed by the material and literary evidence pertaining to ritual purity practices in Graeco Roman Palestine and especially the Galilee He contends that stepped pools which we now know were in use well beyond the Destruction of the Temple and as indicated by the large collection on the western acropolis of Sepphoris and elsewhere into the Middle and Late Roman Byzantine eras must be understood in light of biblical and popular perspectives on ritual purity. The interpretation of the finds is too frequently forced to conform to rabbinic prescriptions which oftentimes were the result of the sages' unique and creative nominalist approach to ritual purity. Special attention is given to the role ritual purity continued to play in the lives of ordinary Jews despite or because of the loss of the Temple. Miller argues against the prevailing tendency to type material finds and Jewish society according to known groups pre 70 C E Pharisaic Sadducaic Essenic post 70 C E rabbinic priestly etc. He further counters the perception that ritual purity practices were largely the interest of priests and argues against the recent suggestion that the kohanim resurfaced as an influential group in Late Antiquity. Building upon his earlier work on sages and commoners, Miller claims that the rabbis emerged out of a context in which a biblically derived complex common Judaism thrived. Stepped pools, stone vessels, and other material finds are realia belonging to this complex common Judaism. A careful reading of the rabbis indicates that they were acutely aware of the extent to which ritual purity rites pertaining to home and family life had spread, which undoubtedly contributed to their intense interest in regulating them.

Education at the Intersection of Globalization and Technology

Sharon Waller, Lee Waller, Vongai Mpofu, Mercy Kurebwa, 2021-04-07 Today's educators stand at the crossroads of globalization and technology. The world is rapidly shrinking. The workplace is being transformed before our very eyes. Technology is forever changing the way we perceive reality and the way we do business. Educators are required to equip students for a workplace that has yet to emerge. The skill sets of today's job market are often obsolete before students can enter the workplace. Now is the time for educators to rise to the challenges of our modern world. By embracing the vision of yesterday's practitioners and joining hands with tomorrow's practitioners, educators can transform our world and equip their students for the upward mobility and career flexibility required in tomorrow's workplace.

The Intersection of Sacredness and Archaeology

Donna L. Gillette, Thomas L. Sanders, 2024-10-01 At the point of the often contentious intersection of sacred site preservation and resource development, archaeology has a unique and valuable role. Archaeology has been criticized as a destroyer of sacred sites through the unbridled pursuit of knowledge through excavation or aiding unbridled development by failing to identify sacred sites. However, archaeology can act as a mitigator between the conflicting goals of preservation and development while giving the indigenous a voice. At the heart of this mitigation is understanding the sacred, how it might be physically manifested, how those of diverse cultures understand it, and how it is effected by the laws and norms of diverse cultures. The purpose of this book is to enhance the discussion surrounding contemporary human interaction with our natural and cultural landscape. Its first goal is to make this discussion more productive and less contentious by presenting and thus recognizing the cultural ways of knowing and perspectives of indigenous people. Its second goal is to foster the preservation of our sacred landscape. As more and more of our physical landscape is being altered worldwide through rapid growth and development the cultural landscape is also being changed and challenged These changes often reflect the interests of some members of society while the interests of others including those of Native and Indigenous communities and many archaeologists environmentalists and others who understand the importance of knowing the past are disregarded The latter group is dedicated toward preserving special places and continuing to provide for Native people the ability to celebrate their traditions and focusing on defining the sacred landscape

The Intersection of Semiotics and Phenomenology Brian Kemple, 2019-07-08 Many contemporary explanations of conscious human experience relying either upon neuroscience or appealing to a spiritual soul fail to provide a complete and coherent theory These explanations the author argues fall short because the underlying explanatory constituent for all experience are not entities such as the brain or a spiritual soul but rather relation and the unique way in which human beings form relations This alternative frontier is developed through examining the phenomenological method of Martin Heidegger and the semiotic theory of Charles S Peirce While both of these thinkers independently provide great insight into the difficulty of accounting for human experience this volume brings these insights into a new complementary synthesis This synthesis opens new doors for understanding all aspects of conscious human experience not just those that can be quantified and without appealing to a mysterious spiritual principle

Human Identity at the Intersection of Science, Technology and Religion Christopher C. Knight, 2016-05-13 Humans are unique in their ability to reflect on themselves Recently a number of scholars have pointed out that human self conceptions have a history Ideas of human nature in the West have always been shaped by the interplay of philosophy theology science and technology The fast pace of developments in the latter two spheres neuroscience genetics artificial intelligence biomedical engineering call for fresh reflections on what it means now to be human and for theological and ethical judgments on how we might shape our own destiny in the future The leading scholars in this book offer fresh contributions to the lively quest for an account of ourselves that does justice to current developments in theology science technology and philosophy

The Intersection of Intellectual Property Law and the Green Movement John Marshall Review of Intellectual Property Law, 2010-06-22 Special symposium by leading scholars and lawyers on intellectual property law including patents and trademarks The Green Issue presents cutting edge articles on the emerging green movement in environmental law and its promotion through IP law Topics include encouraging biodiversity green labeling and fake marketing greenwashing miscalculation of long term costs and patenting environmental tech

One Hundred Years at the Intersection of Chemistry and Physics Jeremiah James, Thomas Steinhauser, Dieter Hoffmann, Bretislav Friedrich, 2011-10-27 This volume occasioned by the centenary of the Fritz Haber Institute formerly the Institute for Physical Chemistry and Electrochemistry covers the institute s scientific and institutional history from its founding until the present The institute was among the earliest established by the Kaiser Wilhelm Society and its inauguration was one of the first steps in the development of Berlin Dahlem into a center for scientific research Its establishment was made possible by an endowment from Leopold Koppel granted on the condition that Fritz Haber well known for his discovery of a method to synthesize ammonia from its elements be made its director The history of the institute has largely paralleled that of 20th century Germany It undertook controversial weapons research during World War I followed by a Golden Era during the 1920s in spite of financial hardships Under the National Socialists it experienced a purge of its scientific staff and a diversion of its research into the service of the new regime accompanied by a breakdown in its international relations In the immediate aftermath of World War II it suffered crippling material losses from which it recovered slowly in the post war era In 1953 shortly after taking the name of its founding director the institute joined the fledgling Max Planck Society During the 1950s and 60s the institute supported diverse researches into the structure of matter and electron microscopy in a territorially insular and politically precarious West Berlin In subsequent decades as both Berlin and the Max Planck Society underwent significant changes the institute reorganized around a board of coequal scientific directors and a renewed focus on the investigation of elementary processes on surfaces and interfaces topics of research that had been central to the work of Fritz Haber and the first Golden Era of the institute
