

Remember...

It's difficult to tell a wild animal on its own that it's running or moving, despite what you see. Before you can explain the animal's running, you need to see it first.

Vital Shots

Every hunter wants to bring home the game he or she is seeking, and sometimes every hunter wants to do it by inflicting a minimal amount of suffering. To achieve these two goals, it's essential that you understand the anatomy of the game you're shot and have him or her in place for a clean kill.

Where To Shoot

- The most effective shot on any animal is to the vital organs—heart and lungs. In large game animals, these organs lie in the chest cavity behind the front shoulder. A long shot is the most effective shot for big game.
- The aim of the vital organs shot remains simple: shoot the heart and lungs. A shot to the vital organs is immediately and sure to die. If the animal is hit, it will have a blood trail that's easy to track.
- Aside from being a good technique, the key to a clean kill is patience. Hunters should wait there in the vital organs only if you do not have a clean shot in the vital organs, wait until the animal presents the best possible shot.

The vital organ (heart) shot for a turkey is to the front and back. The front shot is to the heart and lungs, and the back shot is to the heart and lungs.

Choosing the Proper Shot Angle

The shot angle is the angle at which the animal is standing in relation to the hunter. Knowing which angles offer the most effective—and least effective—shots is an essential part of being a responsible hunter.

Broadside

The broadside shot angle is the preferred shot angle for both hunters and both hunters for large game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear.

- Elk: The broadside position offers several excellent shots for a hunter. The first target is the shoulder and chest area. A bullet of the correct weight that is fired from a distance adequate for the game will break the shoulder bone and sever the lungs or heart.
- Bear: The broadside angle offers the best shot for the largest big game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear. For most big game, the aiming spot is straight up from the back side of the front leg, one-third of the way up from the bottom of the chest. The game will present the shot but not the shoulder bone, wait until the bear is forward, and aim behind the shoulder.
- Quartering Away: The quartering away shot angle is when your target is facing away from you but at an angle. The animal is usually looking away from you.
 - Elk: For hunters, the quartering away position offers several strong spots on all big game. The area just behind the shoulder is the best aiming spot for close presentation of the vital organs. From the quartering away shot, the animal is forward, and aim behind the shoulder.

The preferred shot for large game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear is broadside.

Firing Positions

There are four standard rifle firing positions: prone, standing, sitting, and kneeling.

Prone

The prone position is the most stable of the four positions. Because it's the easiest to hold, it's the best position for maximizing the fundamentals of firing—sighting, breath control, trigger squeeze, and follow through.

Safety Tip

Shooting a firearm can cause serious and permanent injury and even death. Always use safety.

- When shooting any firearm, always wear properly fitting eye protection. For target practice, you can use safety glasses or goggles, and a high-impact face mask.

When hunting, use appropriate eye protection. Always wear eye protection in close proximity to hunting. Use safety glasses, goggles, or face masks. Use the National Hunting Conservation Association website at www.nhca.org.

- Use more suitable eye protection, such as shooting glasses and high-impact lenses, when shooting in public areas.

Standing

With neither arm supported, this is the most difficult position for firing an accurate shot. Unless the target is very close, which is impossible, so to long movement of the barrel is a small area of profile. Instead, natural motion will produce the best shot.

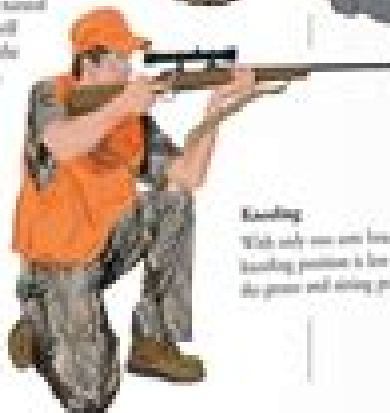

Sitting

Both arms are supported by your legs. Close to the prone position, this is the most stable position.

Kneeling

With only one arm braced, the kneeling position is less steady than the prone and sitting positions.
