Energy Policies for Sustainable Development Strategies Nnaemeka Vincent Emodi,2016-05-18 In this book a number of long term energy scenarios are developed for Nigeria considering the impact of vital factors that may influence energy policies in the country s future energy system The energy scenarios were developed through the Long Range Energy Alternatives Planning System LEAP model The model identified the future energy demand and supply pattern using a least cost combination of technology options while limiting the emission of greenhouse gases The book presents four scenarios and key parameters considered include GDP households population urbanization and the growth rates of energy intensive sectors Further it highlights the findings of the cost benefit analysis which reveal the costs of implementing selected policies and strategies in Nigeria including those focusing on energy efficiency and fuel technology switching The book also discusses the application of the LEAP OSeMOSYS Model in order to identify lowest cost power plants for electricity generation Some sustainable strategies that can ensure a low carbon development in Nigeria are also explored on the basis of successful country cases in relation to the Nigerian LEAP model As such the book will help policy makers devise energy and sustainable strategies to achieve low carbon development in Nigeria

The Decarbonization Imperative Michael Lenox,Rebecca Duff,2021-10-19 Time is of the essence Climate change looms as a malignant force that will reshape our economy and society for generations to come If we are going to avoid the worst effects of climate change we are going to need to effectively decarbonize the global economy by 2050 This doesn t mean a modest or even a drastic improvement in fuel efficiency standards for automobiles It means 100 percent of the cars on the road being battery powered or powered by some other non carbon emitting powertrain It means 100 percent of our global electricity needs being met by renewables and other non carbon emitting sources such as nuclear power It means electrifying the global industrials sector and replacing carbon intensive chemical processes with green alternatives eliminating scope one emissions emissions in production across all industries particularly steel cement petrochemicals which are the backbone of the global economy It means sustainable farming while still feeding a growing global population Responding to the existential threat of climate change Michael Lenox and Rebecca Duff propose a radical reconfiguration of the industries contributing the most and most harmfully to this planetary crisis Disruptive innovation and a particular calibration of industry dynamics will be key to this change The authors analyze precisely what this might look like for specific sectors of the world economy ranging from agriculture to industrials and building energy and transportation and examine the possible challenges and obstacles to introducing a paradigm shift in each one With regards to existent business practices and products how much and what kind of transformation can be achieved The authors assert that markets are critical to achieving the needed change and that they operate within a larger scale of institutional rules and norms Lenox and Duff conclude with an analysis of policy interventions and strategies that could move us toward clean tech and decarbonization by 2050

Livestock, capture fisheries, and aquaculture in Myanmar: Status and recent trends Belton, Ben ,Fang, Peixun,2022-06-15 Traditional forms of livestock rearing and fishing have been central components in rural livelihoods in Myanmar for centuries and remain important today More capital intensive forms of marine fishing aquaculture and poultry farming began to expand during the early 1990s and grew briskly thereafter This paper summarizes the status of the supply side of livestock capture fisheries and aquaculture sectors in Myanmar based on analysis of nationally representative data extracted from the Myanmar Living Conditions Survey 2017 and supporting information from other recent surveys and secondary sources We examine levels of livestock ownership participation in capture fisheries and aquaculture reasons for rearing livestock ownership of fishing assets and household earnings from all three activities We also discuss the characteristics of more geographically clustered capitalintensive forms of poultry and swine farming fishing and fish farming and the downturn in these sectors beginning in 2020 with the twin crises of COVID 19 and the coup We conclude with a discussion of possible future directions for livestock farming capture fisheries and aquaculture in Myanmar along with priorities for sectoral upgrading

Australian Women in Advertising in the Twentieth Century J. Dickenson,2016-04-29 When did Australian women first enter the advertising industry The stereotypical advertising executive might be a pony tailed Ferrari driving young ish man but women have worked in Australian advertising agencies from the first years of the modern industry and today they comprise half of the industry s workforce Australian Women in Advertising in the Twentieth Century rescues these women from their obscurity By employing a broader definition of advertising than usual this study reveals the important role women have played in the development of the Australian advertising industry sheds light on women s struggle to reach the higher echelons of the industry and considers why the popular image of the advertising executive is at such variance from the reality The experiences of these remarkable women across a century of Australian advertising provide valuable information on the role of gender in the development of this ubiquitous industry as well as the encroachment of consumer culture
