Dad Bod's Daring December Violet Rae, 2025-08-05 Edward I've always kept to myself My farm is my life and I prefer it that way no distractions no attachments But when Ember moves into the house next door right before Christmas everything changes She's all festive holiday warmth lighting up my lonely winter nights and threatening to melt my frozen heart But when a dangerous motorcycle gang starts sniffing around I realize she's got more trouble on her hands than she's letting on Protecting my land is one thing Protecting her That's personal As the chill outside deepens the temperature inside threatens to burn out of control With every stolen glance and accidental touch it's harder to remember where my responsibility to protect her ends and my need to claim her begins With danger closing in I have no choice but to face the truth this Christmas my brown-eyed firefly might just be the gift I never saw coming

The Medicalized Body and Anesthetic Culture Brent Dean Robbins, 2018-04-03 This book examines how modern medicine's mechanistic conception of the body has become a defense mechanism to cope with death anxiety Robbins draws from research on the phenomenology of the body the history of cadaver dissection and empirical research in terror management theory to highlight how medical culture operates as an agent which promotes anesthetic consciousness as a habit of perception In short modern medicine's comportment toward the cadaver promotes the suppression of the memory of the person who donated their body This suppression of the memorial body comes at the price of concealing the lived experiential body of patients in medical practice Robbins argues that this style of coping has influenced Western culture and has helped to foster maladaptive patterns of perception associated with experiential avoidance diminished empathy death denial and the dysregulation of emotion
