

Figure 18-7. Extending the upper floor area with a shallow auxiliary header to provide headroom. The partition over the auxiliary header must not be load bearing.

header permits a slight extension in the floor area above a stairway, Figure 18-7. When a closet is located directly above the stairway, the closet floor is sometimes raised for additional headroom.

18.4 Stair Design

Most important in stair design is the mathematical relationship between the riser and tread. There are three generally accepted rules for calculating the rise-run or riser-tread ratio. It is wise to observe them:

- The sum of two risers and one tread should equal 24"–25".
- The sum of one riser and one tread should equal 17"–18".
- The height of the riser times the width of the tread should equal 70"–75".

According to the first rule, a riser 7 1/2" high requires a tread of 10". A 6 1/2" riser requires a 12" tread.

The current edition of the International Residential Code, developed by the International Code Council, includes a change in the allowable tread width and height of risers. The previous standard for residences was an 8 1/4" rise and a 9" tread. Under the new code, a 7 3/4" rise and a 10" tread (assuming a nosing of at least 3/4") are required. The International Residential Code, which is updated every three years, has no legal force until it is adopted by state or local governments.

In residential structures, treads (excluding nosing) are seldom less than 9" or more than 12". Nosing is a small extension of the tread. In a given run of stairs, it is extremely important that all of the treads be the same size. The same is true of the risers. A person tends to subconsciously measure the first few steps and will probably trip if subsequent risers are not the same.

When the rise-run combination is wrong, climbing the stairs will be tiring and cause extra strain on leg muscles. Further, the toe may kick the riser if the tread is too narrow. A unit rise of 7"–7 5/8" with an appropriate tread width provides both comfort and safety. Main or principal stairs are usually planned to have a rise in this range. Service stairs are often steeper, but risers should be no higher than 8". As stair rise is increased, the run must be decreased. See Figure 18-8.

A main stair should be wide enough to allow two people to pass without contact. Further, it should provide space so furniture can be moved up or down, Figure 18-9. A minimum width of 3' is generally recommended, Figure 18-10. FHA permits a minimum width of 2'-8", measured clear of the handrail. On service stairs, the requirement is reduced to 2'-6". Furniture moving is an important consideration and extra clearance should be provided in closed stairs of the L- and U-type, especially those that include wedge-shaped treads, or winders.

Stairs should have a continuous rail along the side for safety and convenience. A handrail (also called a stair rail) is used on open stairways that are constructed with a low partition or banister. In closed stairs, the support rail is called a wall rail. It is attached to the wall with special metal brackets. Except for very wide stairs, a rail on Winders: Wedge-shaped treads installed where stairs turn.

Handrail: A pole installed above and parallel to stair steps to act as a support for persons using the stairs. Also called a stair rail.

Wall rail: In closed stairs, the support rail that is attached to the wall.
