framing Africa's ongoing digitization Incentives and Choice in Health Care Frank A. Sloan, Hirschel Kasper, 2008-05-16

Leading scholars in the field of health economics evaluate the role of incentives in health and health care decision making from the perspectives of both supply and demand. A vast body of empirical evidence has accumulated demonstrating that incentives affect health care choices made by both consumers and suppliers of health care services. Decisions in health care are affected by many types of incentives such as the rate of return pharmaceutical manufacturers expect on their investments in research and development or disincentives such as increases in copayments patients must make when they visit physicians or are admitted to hospitals. In this volume leading scholars in health economics review these new and important results and describe their own recent research assessing the role of incentives in health care markets and decisions people make that affect their personal health. The contexts include demand decisions choices made by individuals about health care services they consume and the health insurance policies they purchase and supply decisions made by medical students practicing physicians hospitals and pharmaceutical manufacturers. Researchers and students of health economics and policy makers will find this book a valuable resource both for learning economic concepts particularly as they apply to health care and for reading up to date summaries of the empirical evidence. General readers will find the book's chapters accessible interesting and useful for gaining an understanding of the likely effects of alternative health care policies. Transformative Food Value Chains for Local Development Silke Maria Stöber, Wolfgang Bokelmann, Walter Odongo, Susanne Huyskens-Keil, Joanita Kataike, 2024-01-26 Understanding the capacity of food systems to undertake a transformation towards sustainability requires understanding how resources stream in and out of the systems As complex socio economic structures food and agricultural value chains are important means for channeling resources knowledge and agency in and out of rural areas Given their prominent role on the development agendas there is mixed evidence as to what extent value chains and their actors can contribute to improving the livelihoods in poor rural and urban areas In order to shape sustainable living places transformative capacities and good governance are important mainstays Transformative agri food value chains are robust and often act as the sole transmission belt for returning capital resources and identity back into vulnerable areas Moreover domestic or regional chains may provide urban consumers with fresh quality food that also contributes to regional identity

The Atlantic Divide in Antitrust Daniel J. Gifford, Robert T. Kudrle, 2015-02-11 The United States and the European Union operate the world's two most powerful systems of competition

law and policy whose enforcement and judicial institutions employ similar concepts and legal language Yet the two regimes sometimes reach very different results on significant antitrust issues In The Atlantic Divide in Antitrust Daniel Gifford and Robert Kudrle show that a combination of differences in social values political institutions and legal precedent inhibit close convergence The book explores the main contested areas of contemporary antitrust mergers price discrimination predatory pricing exclusive supply conditional rebating intellectual property and Schumpeterian competition The authors explore how the prevailing antitrust analyses differ in the EU and the U S the policy ramifications of these differences and how the analyses used by the enforcement authorities or the courts in each of these several areas relate to each other Several themes run through the substantive areas treated in the book pricing incentives and constraints welfare effects and whether competition tends to be viewed as an efficiency generating process or as rivalry The notorious Microsoft case offers a useful lens to examine copyright patents and trade secrets and the authors take the opportunity to contemplate competition policy in dynamic innovative industries more broadly For the EU competition policy has also functioned as a mechanism to bond national markets together in the EU structure the USA federal from the beginning did not require this instrumental aspect in its antitrust doctrines The Atlantic Divide concludes with forecasts and suggestions about how greater compatibility if not convergence might ultimately be attained
