CHAPTER 10

- 10-1. Internationalization strategies: How can professional services be a viable internationalization strategy for a firm?
- Professional services firms are engaged in a variety of internationalization strategies:
- "Global" professional services firms attempt to serve every nation, whether or not they are profitable, and maintain significant offices in foreign countries using sophisticated technology.
 - Domestic market penetration: Professional services firms may have entered international markets by providing services to foreign clients through their domestic headquarters.
- The above internationalization strategies have one thing in common: they require the firm to be highly capable, technologically sophisticated, and able to handle large, complex assignments. In contrast, a traditional, small-scale commercial firm may choose to provide services overseas by licensing other firms to provide such services in foreign markets. This limits the number of the international assignments that can be handled in these areas.
- 10-2. Internationalization strategies: Why have internationalization strategies of the companies in this chapter differed? Explain the differences in strategy.
- Each company has a different goal and business strategy. For example, global professional services firms try to provide services internationally using their own highly sophisticated technology and staff. Other internationalization strategies involve providing global headquarters.
- 10-3. Foreign exchange rate strategies: What is the impact of the foreign exchange rate?
- For global professional services firms, the impact of foreign exchange rates is not as significant as for traditional commercial firms. Global professional services firms are able to provide services internationally using their own highly sophisticated technology and staff. Other internationalization strategies involve providing global headquarters.
1. Domestic market penetration: Professional services firms may have entered international markets by providing services to foreign clients through their domestic headquarters.
 2. Domestic market penetration: Professional services firms may have entered international markets by providing services to foreign clients through their domestic headquarters.
 3. Domestic market penetration: Professional services firms may have entered international markets by providing services to foreign clients through their domestic headquarters.
 4. Domestic market penetration: Professional services firms may have entered international markets by providing services to foreign clients through their domestic headquarters.
