Uri, 2004 The process of formulating and implementing telecommunications policy in the United States often seems chaotic and disorganised with overlapping responsibility and frequent conflicts among federal and state regulators Congress the Administration and the Federal judiciary There has never been a consensus on what should change and what should remain unaltered Telecommunications policy has evolved gradually over a relatively long period of time resulting in a cumulative major transformation It is still tied however to the Communications Act of 1934 Actions have been taken that have gradually moved policy from traditional public utility regulation of a monopoly to greater reliance on market forces and encouragement of competition The policies are an amalgam incorporating elements from a wide range of political and economic views There is nothing endemic in this transformation process to guarantee that the resulting policies have led to greater economic efficiency or that they are better in some subjective sense than alternatives that are available policies that have been implemented in order to evaluate their impact An objective evaluation of the impact of a policy affords an opportunity to make adjustments to it based on the realised economic consequences This approach to policy making can be looked upon as a learning by doing exercise In this book a number of objective studies based on data from various telecommunications systems are presented These studies discuss and evaluate policies that have been implemented In a number of instances the policies have been misguided Recommendations to correct the most egregious problems are offered

Alternative Service Delivery: Readiness Check Gerald T. Gabris, Heidi O. Koenig, Kurt Thurmaier, Craig S. Maher, Kimberly L. Nelson, Katherine A. Piker, Alicia Schatteman, Dawn S. Peters, Craig Rapp, 2014-04-15 Alternative Service Delivery Readiness Check synthesizes academic and practitioner knowledge about alternative service delivery ASD systems This handbook offers information and insights that local governments can use to provide public services more effectively and efficiently It serves as a primer about alternative service delivery intended to guide investigation of new approaches to service delivery It derives from multiple conversations with local government practitioners in Illinois who were frustrated by a lack of guidance on how to think about alternative service delivery methods for public services and in what circumstances different alternatives were more or less successful This handbook is written for both appointed managers and elected officials who are looking for innovative ways to consider service delivery and want to answer the basic question Can we be doing this better Why does your local government want to consider providing public services in new alternative ways As the cases in this handbook demonstrate jurisdictions that successfully develop and implement an alternative service delivery method are driven by a desire to improve service effectiveness Local governments that move from tactical to strategic thinking about service delivery are the ones more likely to improve services using different forms of alternative service delivery The kinds of issues and types of questions examined in this handbook range from how to best handle such demand driven services as allocation of police and fire resources to how to share expensive equipment that your jurisdiction needs only some of the time The stories solutions and evidence are intended to help local government officials understand the differences between delivery alternatives and the prerequisites for developing and implementing each option

The Service-Dominant Logic of Marketing Robert F. Lusch, Stephen L. Vargo, 2014-12-18 Expanding on the editors award winning article Evolving to a New Dominant Logic for Marketing this book presents a challenging new paradigm for the marketing discipline This new paradigm is service oriented customer oriented relationship focused and knowledge based and places marketing once viewed as a support function central to overall business strategy Service dominant logic defines service as the application of competencies for the benefit of another entity and sees mutual service provision rather than the exchange of goods as the proper subject of marketing It moves the orientation of marketing from a market to philosophy where customers are promoted to targeted and captured to a market with philosophy where the customer and supply chain partners are collaborators in the entire marketing process The editors elaborate on this model through an historical analysis clarification and extension of service dominant logic and distinguished marketing thinkers then provide further insight and commentary The result is a more comprehensive and inclusive marketing theory that will challenge both current thinking and marketing practice
