Importance and Role in Ecosystems Geckos play a crucial role in the ecosystems they inhabit As both predators and prey they contribute to the balance of their food chains and influence various aspects of their environment

- 1 Natural Pest Control Geckos are insectivores primarily feeding on mosquitoes cockroaches moths and other small invertebrates By controlling insect populations geckos help prevent the spread of diseases and crop damage making them important allies for humans in both urban and agricultural settings Some farmers encourage gecko populations in their fields to reduce pests without relying on chemical pesticides
- 2 Prey for Other Animals Geckos serve as an important food source for many predators including snakes birds spiders and mammals In some ecosystems geckos are a primary food source for larger reptiles helping maintain healthy predator prey dynamics
- 3 Seed Dispersers and Pollinators While most geckos are insectivores some species such as the New Caledonian Giant Gecko occasionally feed on nectar and fruits By consuming fruit and nectar these geckos contribute to seed dispersal and pollination aiding in the growth of various plant species
