Genetics Joins Evolutionary Theory

Genetics Joins Evolutionary Theory

Gregor Mendel's original ideas on how hereditary information is passed:

- 1. Hereditary information that comes from parents are controlled by genes and that these genes have a hereditary basis in cells. The combination of different alleles in an individual determines the individual's phenotype.
- 2. Genes are passed from one generation to the next in populations. Alleles in a population form a gene pool.
- 3. Allele frequency: is the number of copies of an allele present in a gene pool. Allele frequencies can change over time when alleles are inherited by parents, passed, combined in a new form (either through mutation or recombination).

Examples of Mendel's "hereditary" factors Mendel's work involved genes that controlled seed shape, flower color, and seed pod shape.

- 1. Alleles is any change in the sequence of DNA.
- 2. Some hereditary differences are due to mutations or combinations of mutations. The number of alleles in a population can change over time. Alleles can be passed from one generation to the next.
- 3. Allele frequency is the number of copies of an allele in a population. Allele frequencies can change over time.

Single Gene and Polygenic Traits Hereditary information is passed from one generation to the next. Single gene traits are controlled by one gene. Polygenic traits are controlled by many genes.

- 1. Single gene trait is controlled by one gene. An example is the color of a flower.
- 2. Polygenic trait is controlled by many genes. An example is the height of a person.
