The Character of Rain Amelie Nothomb, 2007-04-01 The Japanese believe that until the age of three children whether Japanese or not are gods each one an okosama or lord child On their third birthday they fall from grace and join the rest of the human race In Amelie Nothomb's new novel The Character of Rain we learn that divinity is a difficult thing from which to recover particularly if like the child in this story you have spent the first two and a half years of life in a nearly vegetative state I remember everything that happened to me after the age of two and one half the narrator tells us She means this literally Once jolted out of her plant like tube like trance to the ecstatic relief of her concerned parents the child bursts into existence absorbing everything that Japan where her father works as a diplomat has to offer Life is an unfolding pageant of delight and danger a ceaseless exploration of pleasure and the limits of power Most wondrous of all is the discovery of water oceans seas pools puddles streams ponds and perhaps most of all rain one meaning of the Japanese character for her name Hers is an amphibious life The Character of Rain evokes the hilarity terror and sanctity of childhood As she did in the award winning international bestseller Fear and Trembling Nothomb grounds the novel in the outlines of her experiences in Japan but the self portrait that emerges from these pages is hauntingly universal Amelie Nothomb's novels are unforgettable immersion experiences leaving you both holding your breath with admiration your lungs aching and longing for more more about French literature      Aimer et mourir Eilene Hoft-March, Judith Holland Sarnecki, 2009-01-23 Aimer et Mourir offers a wide ranging selection of essays that collectively address how from the Middle Ages to the present the notions of love and death get inextricably associated with the narratives that are women's lives. Some of the essays tackle male writers' representations that link women and in particular women's sexuality with death resulting in the figures of the femme fatale, the woman in parturition and the desiring vampire. A number of essays reiterate that women's hypersexualized bodies have been used as a social construct and a psychological screen upon which to project a fear of death. The challenges to this pat reduction of woman's domain come from the mostly women writers represented here and they span from Marguerite de Navarre to Amélie Nothomb. These women writers rework the old formulae giving us instead death defying memories of love, love regenerative of language as of bodies, love forcing the frontiers of death or love creatively redefined within the parameters of death. Nor are these new narratives imagined as belonging to women alone but rather as attesting to a richer, more varied and greatly sensitized human experience.

Re-imagining Japan after Fukushima Tamaki Mihic, 2020-03-11 The 2011 Tohoku earthquake tsunami and Fukushima nuclear disaster collectively referred to as 3.11, the date of the earthquake, had a lasting impact on Japan's identity and global image. In its immediate aftermath, mainstream media presented the country as a disciplined, resilient and composed nation united in the face of a natural disaster. However, 3.11 also drew worldwide attention to the negative aspects of Japanese government and society thought to have caused the unresolved situation at Fukushima. Spurred by heightened emotions following the triple disaster, the Japanese became increasingly polarised between these two views of how to represent themselves. How did literature and popular culture respond to this dilemma? Re-imagining Japan after Fukushima attempts to answer that question by analysing how Japan was portrayed in post-3.11 fiction. Texts are selected from the Japanese, English and French languages and the portrayals are also compared with those from non-fiction discourse. This book argues that cultural responses to 3.11 had a significant role to play in re-imagining Japan after Fukushima.

International Perspectives on Multilingual Literatures Katie Jones, Julian Preece, Aled Rees, 2020-10-28 This carefully curated collection of essays charts interactions between majority languages including English, French, German, Italian and Japanese and minority dialects or languages pushed to the margins including Arabic, Bengali, Esperanto, Neapolitan and Welsh through a series of case studies of leading modern and contemporary cultural producers. The contributors, who work and study across the globe, extend critical understanding of literary multilingualism to the subjects of migration and the exophonic self, translation and the aesthetics of interlinguistic bricolage, language death and language perseveration and power in linguistic hierarchies in post-colonial contexts. Their subjects include the authors Julia Alvarez, Elena Ferrante, Jonathan Franzen, Amélie Nothomb, Ali Smith, Yoko Tawada and Dylan Thomas, the film maker Ulrike Ottinger and the anonymous performers of Griko. The volume will be of interest to students of creative writing, literature, translation and sociolinguistics.
