The Report: Mongolia 2014 Oxford Business Group, 2014-05-23 Since the country's transition from communism two decades ago the Mongolian economy has experienced rapid liberalisation Sectors including ICT and insurance are expanding quickly and while the mining sector has been responsible for making Mongolia a rising star in the global economy there is great potential for further growth in all economic sectors Politically stable and rich with natural resources Mongolia has emerged as a bellwether for investor confidence in recent years The 2013 commercialisation of the Oyu Tolgoi gold and copper mine is helping to diversify Mongolia's mineral exports away from coal while the government is working to improve the investment environment by adopting the new Investment Law among other measures Challenges do exist however from the long harsh winters that slow construction to the difficulty of connecting the sparsely populated nation through ICT and transport systems In response the government has partnered with the private sector on a number of fronts in order to promote economic diversification and competitiveness

Architecture and Retrenchment Helena Mattsson, 2023-01-26 Shortlisted for the Architects Sweden Critics Award 2023 Scholars in architectural and urban history have over the last decade been trying to come to terms with architecture's neoliberal turn and its various impacts from municipal policy to the artistic imagination However most scholarship has focussed on generalizations with very little work to date focussing on specific cases Architecture and Retrenchment brings one such case to the fore investigating the relation between architecture and the Swedish Model of the welfare state It tracks the response of architecture to the gradual retrenchment and ultimate dismantling of the Swedish welfare state which was in its heyday world famous for its integration of architecture and the built environment into the welfare system Ultimately neoliberal economics prevailed yet this book reveals how new architectural strategies and techniques were developed in order to protect the agency of architecture in the newly reorganised society of the 1980s and 1990s Through eight in depth case studies the book situates the often abstract generalised discourse of neoliberalism and privatisation in specific architectural sites and provides an original interpretation of how architecture space aesthetics and politics converged at the end of the twentieth century

Succession to the Throne in Early Modern Russia Paul Bushkovitch,2021-03-18 This revisionist history of succession to the throne in early modern Russia from the Moscow princes of the fifteenth century to Peter the Great argues that legal primogeniture never existed the monarch designated an heir that was usually the eldest son only by custom not by law Overturning generations of scholarship Paul Bushkovitch persuasively demonstrates the many paths to succession to the throne where designation of the heir and occasional elections were part of the relations of the monarch with the ruling elite and to some extent the larger population Exploring how the forms of designation evolved over the centuries as Russian culture changed and in the later seventeenth century made use of Western practices this study shows how when Peter the Great finally formalized the custom in 1722 by enshrining the power of the tsar to designate in law this was not a radical innovation but was in fact consistent with the experience of the previous centuries
