

Quality water is vital to your operation.

There are components in nearly all water that you rely upon for the efficiency of your pumping and/or water-using equipment. There is a natural mineral salt in it that passes through soil and limestone it picks up minerals. These minerals make water "hard" and hard water can create havoc on water heaters, pipes, faucets, valves, laundry dishwashers, coffee makers, and other equipment that use water. Calcium causes the scaling that water can contain and ingression.

Calcium and magnesium, when ingested from water, are considered soft but can form hard, chalky deposits known as deposits. These deposits can clog pipes, reducing flow and heat, leaving elements operating more slowly or less water flow operation time efficiency and your maintenance and energy costs rise.

The Ion Exchange Process

Water softeners use ion-exchange resins and regenerate through a system known as "ion exchange." Systems consist of two tanks: a resin tank and a brine tank. The resin tank contains a bed of negatively charged resin (small plastic beads) that are coated with sodium ions. Hardwater cations (Calcium and Magnesium)

Figure 1: Ion exchange with sodium ions and are opposed by the beads during the softening process into the water flow. The sodium in the water is favorable to plating and replacement, the "soft" water is now ready for use by your operation.

During the exchange process, the sodium ions actually replace those ions attached to the water. In regeneration, reverse the exchange capacity. High concentration sodium chloride is drawn from the brine tank and passed through the resin bed. The positively charged sodium ions in the solution replace the calcium and magnesium ions, allowing them back into the solution. These hardness ions are then flushed down the drain.

Measuring Grains of Hardness

Hardness of water is measured in grains per gallon (GPG) or sometimes in parts per million (PPM). One GPG equals 171 ppm. Highly favorable water with 0.5% of 1% or more is considered hard. In certain hardness applications the level of hardness can be less than water (5%) to determine the hardness of your water. It can be tested using simple test strips or a titration strip and titration can provide an analysis of your water to determine the correct water treatment solution for your operation.

Water	Grains/Gallon	mg/L or ppm
Soft	0.0	0.0
Typing Hard	1.0 to 3.0	171 - 513
Modestly Hard	3.0 to 7.0	513 - 1197
Hard	7.0 to 10.0	1197 - 1710
Very Hard	10.0 +	1710 +

When a water softener has run its life, there's nothing you can do. Water softeners are water conserving meaning they will exchange sodium ions with calcium magnesium ions, replace the magnesium and calcium water. Water softeners are not flow water they simply exchange hardness ions for sodium ions. Hardness, deposits and ingression that can affect the operation time and rate of your water are not affected by softening your water. For those who should consider a "Forever Water" system, it is a forever water system.
