water quality water resource management and wetland conservation Natural wetlands are kidneys and sponges of the earth that remove water pollutants and provide hydrological regulation functions vital to the environment Where the functions of the wetlands are weakened actions of rehabilitations are needed to revitalize those functions While worldwide many natural wetlands have disappeared due to climate change and or human activities constructed wetlands which may be seen as artificial kidneys sponges of the earth have been increasingly built to replicate the functions of the natural wetlands This Research Topic aims to collect and present the latest research developments in natural and constructed wetlands in relation to either water resource functions or water quality Articles published in this Research Topic will showcase new understandings of water balances and flow patterns vegetation characteristics and pollutant transformations in wetland systems innovative designs and efficiencies of wastewater treatment wetlands and technologies that revitalize the ecosystem functions of natural wetlands These articles are expected to bring benefits to research communities water and wastewater industries and government agencies that deal with wetland water management and conservation High quality Original Research and Review articles in this field are all welcome for submission to this Research Topic Research interests include but are not limited to the following areas 1 Water balances and flow patterns in natural wetland systems 2 The hydrological regulation functions and importance of natural wetlands in their environmental context 3 Vegetation characteristics of natural wetlands and their functional importance in wetland water pollution control 4 Techniques for the rehabilitation of degraded wetlands 5 The role of constructed wetlands in wastewater treatment 6 Innovative designs and efficiencies of wastewater treatment wetlands 7 The modeling of hydrological and or pollutant dynamics in wetland systems 8 The ecohydrology of wetlands 9 The role of wetlands in the global carbon cycle 10 Impacts of climate change and human activities on wetland hydrology and water resources Recognizing that hydrological and biogeochemical processes are basically coupled in wetlands and their landscapes manuscripts that report their interactions are particularly welcome

Evolution of International Aviation Dawna L. Rhoades, 2016-04-15 The purpose of this book is twofold First it lays out the forces that shaped the international aviation industry and that changed all the rules in the drive for liberalization Second it looks at the many interesting and difficult choices ahead that the airline industry in general and the international aviation industry in particular face These choices include many dichotomies pulling back from the trend toward liberalization or embracing the liberalization trend merging in search of profitability or fragmenting the industry in search of economies These possible futures are explored including the pros and cons of each future from a national consumer employer and employee perspective As with the previous two editions Evolution of International Aviation reviews the historical development of the international aviation system From this foundation it then provides an updated and expanded account of the current state of the aviation and aerospace industry including profitability consolidation and merger activity New to this edition the book broadens the coverage of the industry segments airlines air cargo and manufacturing to include the emerging commercial space sector It also emphasizes the relationship between aviation and the political process exploring the sustainability of this mode of transportation in a world of climate change high oil prices and political instability Because this book is intended for both the interested amateur and the more serious student references are provided in the text and at the end of each chapter to allow for further in depth study The third edition also adds to each chapter a set of learning objectives and a concluding series of questions for discussion
