

Foreign Policy White Paper 2017

Submission by Ian Dudgeon

Introduction

This submission addresses the issues of the primary importance to us of the Asia-Pacific region, our interests and values, who we are and our image, the need for an independent foreign policy, the US alliance, regional engagement, our multilateral and international legal commitments, and aid and development assistance. It puts the views of the author, an active practitioner in international affairs.

The role of foreign policy

The fundamental role of Australia's foreign policy is to protect and promote Australia's national interests within the global community of which we are part.

Our region

While recognising we are part of a global community, the Asia-Pacific region is the area of primary importance to us for political, economic and national security reasons.

Geographically, this region reaches from South Asia through to North America. It includes India, China, Japan, South Korea, Russia, the US and Canada. It also includes Indonesia and the other ASEANs, as well as New Zealand and those Pacific Island states in the South West Pacific. Also included are critical sea lanes for international trade, especially the Malacca Strait and South China Sea.

This region is home to more than half the world's population, it is the new engine room of the global economy, and the region encompassing most of our two-way trade and investment. Also, more than anywhere else, any major event and most other events that occur in this region, inevitably, will affect at least some, potentially all, of Australia's national interests, directly or indirectly.

The Indo-Pacific region is also important to Australia, but in relative terms, less so than the Asia-Pacific. This region overlaps with South, East and S.E. Asia and extends vital two-way sea lanes westward to include oil supply routes from the Middle East and sea trade access to and from Europe. These western reaches are also where most ADF overseas operational deployments have occurred during the past decade and a half (e.g. Afghanistan, Iraq) in support of UN-mandated or other alliance commitments. But the region's eastern boundary stops mid-Pacific, and most significantly, excludes North America.

Theory-Practice Divide in International Relations Daniel Maliniak, Susan Peterson, Ryan Powers, Michael J. Tierney, 2020-05-01 There is a widening divide between the data tools and knowledge that international relations scholars produce and what policy practitioners find relevant for their work In this first of its kind conversation leading academics and practitioners reflect on the nature and size of the theory practice divide They find the gap varies by issue area and over time The essays in this volume use data gathered by the Teaching Research and International Policy TRIP Project over a fifteen year period As a whole the volume analyzes the structural factors that affect the academy's ability to influence policy across issue areas and the professional incentives that affect scholars willingness to attempt to do so Individual chapters explore these questions in the areas of trade finance human rights development environment nuclear weapons and strategy interstate war and intrastate conflict Each substantive chapter is followed by a response from a policy practitioner providing their perspective on the gap and the possibility for academic work to have an impact Bridging the Theory Practice Divide in International Relations provides concrete answers and guidance about how and when scholarship can be policy relevant

Thanks for Your Service Peter D. Feaver, 2023 A definitive study on the decades long run of high public confidence in the military and why it may rest on some shaky foundations What explains the high levels of public confidence in the US military and does high confidence matter In Thanks for Your Service the eminent civil military relations scholar Peter D Feaver addresses this question and focuses on what it means for the military Proprietary survey data show that confidence is partly based on public beliefs about the military s high competence adherence to high professional ethics and a determination to stand apart from the bitter divisions of partisan politics However as Feaver argues confidence is also shaped by a partisan gap and by social desirability bias the idea that some individuals express confidence in the military because they believe that is the socially approved attitude to hold Not only does Feaver help us understand how and why the public has confidence in the military but he also exposes problems that policymakers need to be aware of Specifically this book traces how confidence in the institution shapes public attitudes on the use of force and may not always reinforce best practices in democratic civil military relations

Fürtig, 2014-12-16 With theoretically rich contributions from an international group of political scientists historians and economists this volume addresses the puzzle of why the Middle East has produced no single dominant and acknowledged regional power despite contenders such as Egypt Saudi Arabia Iran Israel and Turkey Rich theoretically engaged case study chapters address a gap in the vibrant international academic discussion on the role of new regional powers in global politics Fürtig offers powerful insights into both the unique nature of the Middle East region with its dispersed power structures and competing centers and probable new power constellations Diplomatic Strategies of Rising Nations in the Global South Jacqueline Anne Braveboy-Wagner, 2024-07-12 At a time of change in the international system this book examines how non traditional leading nations from the Global South have fared to date and what the chances are of their rise to continue In the second decade of the twenty first century the enthusiasm of observers of the international scene about the rise of the rest is waning as many countries that were expected to lead the evolving multipolar order are experiencing economic contraction and governance problems In order to predict further developments the contributors to this volume focus on the types and sources of the diplomatic strategies that must be executed by rising states if they are to preserve domestic advances as well as gain influence regionally and internationally Through a comprehensive examination of case studies from Latin America Africa Asia and the Middle East they show that while there are commonalities among these rising states unique domestic conditions values and traditions impact and predict diplomatic strategizing and the ability for sustained projection on the international scene Diplomatic Strategies of Nations in the Global South Jacqueline Braveboy-Wagner, 2016-10-19 At a time of change in the international system this book examines how non traditional leading nations from the Global South have fared to date and what the chances are of their rise to continue In the second decade of the twenty first century the enthusiasm of observers of the international scene about the rise of the rest is waning as many countries that were expected to lead the evolving multipolar order are experiencing economic contraction and governance problems In order to predict further developments the contributors to this volume focus on the types and sources of the diplomatic strategies that must be executed by rising states if they are to preserve domestic advances as well as gain influence regionally and internationally Through a comprehensive examination of case studies from Latin America Africa Asia and the Middle East they show that while there are commonalities among these rising states unique domestic conditions values and traditions impact and predict diplomatic strategizing and the ability for sustained projection on the international scene

Think Tanks James G. McGann, 2019-03-26 The growth of think tanks with uniquely Asian characteristics Policy research institutes better known as think tanks are long established and well known in Western countries but have developed only in recent years in much of the rest of the world Globalization is partly responsible for the new growth in think tanks since few issues are totally domestic and governments and citizens increasingly understand the need for well informed policy advice Think tanks have become especially important in many Asian nations over the past decade coinciding with their rise to new prominence in international affairs Asia's major players the People's Republic of China India Japan the Republic of Korea Singapore and more recently countries in Central Asia like Kazakhstan now have major think tanks These institutions have become the go to organizations for proposals and policy advice on key economic security social and environmental issues This book by a noted expert in the field traces the growing influence of these policy actors in Asia places the trend in historical context and explores how the region's countries have fostered the growth of think tanks with uniquely Asian characteristics

Global and Regional Leadership of BRICS Countries Stephen Kingah, Cintia Quiliconi, 2015-11-17 This book presents a systematic collation of the regional and global dimensions of the leadership role of BRICS countries Brazil Russia India China and South Africa It analyses the rising regional and global leadership of BRICS using specific benchmarks to gauge the nature of this leadership The elements examined include willingness to lead the capacity to do as much and the degree to which the given actor is accepted as a leader both within and beyond its region The chapters in the book capture the nature of trends in regional and global leadership within the contexts of a changing international order It is taken for granted that Brazil Russia India China and South Africa are now engineering a unique pool of governance that is seeking alternatives to the current order of global economic and political affairs The fact that these countries have jointly decided to forge ahead with the BRICS constellation of states that is now taking consequential decisions such as the creation of the BRICS New Development Bank is not to be treated lightly In this book the majority of papers take a step back and systematically analyse the real state of the leadership that is provided by the BRICS on a litany of regionally and globally relevant issues While no one doubts the fact that these countries have the capacity to provide leadership especially in their various regions on many issues what remains moot is whether they are willing and capable to do so at the global level Even in those cases where there is the willingness and capacity the book argues that the acceptance of such leadership by potential followers is not always a given
