scientists actually work and think and making instruction reflect research on learning that demonstrates the importance of building coherent understandings over time It structures science education around three dimensions the practices through which scientists and engineers do their work the key crosscutting concepts that cut across disciplines and the core ideas of the disciplines and argues that they should be interwoven in every aspect of science education building in sophistication as students progress through grades K 12 Developing Assessments for the Next Generation Science Standards recommends strategies for developing assessments that yield valid measures of student proficiency in science as described in the new Framework This report reviews recent and current work in science assessment to determine which aspects of the Framework s vision can be assessed with available techniques and what additional research and development will be needed to support an assessment system that fully meets that vision The report offers a systems approach to science assessment in which a range of assessment strategies are designed to answer different kinds of questions with appropriate degrees of specificity and provide results that complement one another Developing Assessments for the Next Generation Science Standards makes the case that a science assessment system that meets the Framework s vision should consist of assessments designed to support classroom instruction assessments designed to monitor science learning on a broader scale and indicators designed to track opportunity to learn New standards for science education make clear that new modes of assessment designed to measure the integrated learning they promote are essential The recommendations of this report will be key to making sure that the dramatic changes in curriculum and instruction signaled by Framework and the NGSS reduce inequities in science education and raise the level of science education for all students Cracking the AP Psychology Exam, 2014 Edition Laura

Bayesian Psychometric Modeling Roy Levy, Robert J. Mislevy, 2017-07-28 A Single Cohesive Framework of Tools and Procedures for Psychometrics and Assessment Bayesian Psychometric Modeling presents a unified Bayesian approach across traditionally separate families of psychometric models It shows that Bayesian techniques as alternatives to conventional approaches offer distinct and profound advantages in achieving many goals of psychometrics Adopting a Bayesian approach can aid in unifying seemingly disparate and sometimes conflicting ideas and activities in psychometrics This book explains both how to perform psychometrics using Bayesian methods and why many of the activities in psychometrics align with Bayesian thinking The first part of the book introduces foundational principles and statistical models including conceptual issues normal distribution models Markov chain Monte Carlo estimation and regression Focusing more directly on psychometrics the second part covers popular psychometric models including classical test theory factor analysis item response theory latent class analysis and Bayesian networks Throughout the book procedures are illustrated using examples primarily from educational assessments A supplementary website provides the datasets WinBUGS code R code and Netica files used in the examples

Parapsychology provides an approachable yet comprehensive compendium of information Cross-Cultural Risk Perception Ortwin Renn, Bernd Rohrmann, 2013-03-14 Cross Cultural Risk Perception demonstrates the richness and wealth of theoretical insights and practical information that risk perception studies can offer to policy makers risk experts and interested parties The book begins with an extended introduction summarizing the state of the art in risk perception research and core issues of cross cultural comparisons The main body of the book consists of four cross cultural studies on public attitudes towards risk in different countries including the United States Australia New Zealand France Germany Sweden Bulgaria Romania Japan and China The last chapter critically discusses the main findings from these studies and proposes a framework for understanding and investigating cross cultural risk perception Finally implications for communication regulation and management are outlined The two editors sociologist Ortwin Renn Center of Technology Assessment Germany and psychologist Bernd Rohrmann University of Melbourne Australia have been engaged in risk research for the last three decades They both have written extensively on this subject and provided new empirical and theoretical insights into the growing body of international risk perception research Gender and Fair Assessment Warren W. Willingham, Nancy S. Cole, 2013-12-16 There have been many important changes in the participation of women and men in American society over the past quarter century Tests play a role in those changes by providing evidence of the diverse achievement and proficiency of women and men They aid the learning process and reflect inequalities in opportunity to learn and participate In addition they provide useful information in considering what alternatives in education and work make most sense for individuals and influence views about groups of students educational programs and a wide range of issues For all of these reasons it is important that tests assess fairly and reflect accurately the ways young people are and are not achieving as well as desired The test performance of women and men is a research topic of historical interest and has received much attention in recent years Because of this increased interest there is a great deal of new research and data available The purpose of the study presented in this volume was to review this new information with two objectives in mind to clarify patterns of gender difference and similarity in test performance and related achievements and to see what implications those findings might have for fair assessment and as a corollary examine the assessment process as a possible source of gender differences This study is interested in tests used in education to assess developed knowledge and skill In order to gain a broader view of gender similarity and difference the contributors looked at other types of measures and other characteristics of young women and men Their hope is to contribute to a firmer basis for insuring fairness in tests an objective which is particularly important as the field moves increasingly to new forms of assessment in which there is less experience
