Test Fairness in the New Generation of Large-Scale Assessment Hong Jiao, Robert W. Lissitz, 2017-06-01 The new generation of tests is faced with new challenges In the K 12 setting the new learning targets are intended to assess higher order thinking skills and prepare students to be ready for college and career and to keep American students

competitive with their international peers In addition the new generation of state tests requires the use of technology in item delivery and embedding assessment in real world authentic situations It further requires accurate assessment of students at all ability levels One of the most important questions is how to maintain test fairness in the new assessments with technology innovative items and technology delivered tests In the traditional testing programs such as licensure and certification tests and college admission tests test fairness has constantly been a key psychometric issue in test development and this continues to be the case with the national testing programs As test fairness needs to be addressed throughout the whole process of test development experts from state admission and licensure tests will address test fairness challenges in the new generation assessment The book chapters clarify misconceptions of test fairness including the use of admission test results in cohort comparison the use of international assessment results in trend evaluation whether standardization and fairness necessarily mean uniformity when test takers have different cultural backgrounds and whether standardization can insure fairness More technically chapters also address issues related to how compromised items and test fairness are related to classification decisions how accessibility in item development and accommodation could be mingled with technology how to assess special populations with dyslexia using Blinder Oaxaca Decomposition for differential item functioning detection and differential feature functioning in automated scoring Overall this book addresses test fairness issues in state assessment college admission testing international assessment and licensure tests Fairness is discussed in the context of culture and special populations Further fairness related to performance assessment and automated scoring is a focus as well This book provides a very good source of information related to test fairness issues in test development in the new generation of assessment where technology is highly involved

Nature-based learning and development: Maximizing the returns on investment, volume II Catherine Jordan, Andrea Faber Taylor, Nancy M. Wells, Ming Kuo, Ulrich Dettweiler, 2023-11-06

Comprehensive School Physical Activity Programs Russell Carson, Collin A. Webster, 2019-03-12 Schools are the ideal place to promote and apply the recommended accumulation of 60 minutes of daily physical activity But until now it has been difficult to bridge the gap between research in this area and day to day practice in order to establish solid programs That's where Comprehensive School Physical Activity Programs Putting Research Into Evidence Based Practice comes in CSPAP Model Brought to Life The comprehensive school physical activity program CSPAP model originally outlined as a 2008 position statement by the National Association for Sport and Physical Education to promote physical activity throughout K 12 is brought to life through this comprehensive all in one resource In the decade since that position statement CSPAP has been spreading through numerous initiatives which have mobilized a CSPAP field of study and a national framework for physical activity and physical education CSPAP acts as a hub supporting physical activity through multiple components that can include physical education physical activity before during and after school staff involvement and family and community engagement Moreover each CSPAP component can serve to strengthen and reinforce the academic goals of physical education Accommodates Needs of

Diverse Audiences Comprehensive School Physical Activity Programs published in association with SHAPE America accommodates the growing needs of academic researchers school practitioners district coordinators educators advocates organizations university faculty and students who want to learn more about CSPAP or undertake ways to increase daily physical activity opportunities in and around schools

Children and Companion Animals: Psychosocial, Medical, and Neurobiological Implications Andrea M. Beetz, Lynette A. Hart, Brinda I. Jegatheesan, Naoko Koda, 2018-08-16

Children and companion animals seem to have a natural affinity towards each other. Most children desire a relationship with their own companion animals or at least demonstrate an interest to interact with animals in general. Living with companion animals or interacting with animals may have psychosocial, neurobiological or medically relevant effects on typically developing children and juveniles as well as those with diverse and special needs. In this eBook we present several articles addressing the relationships between children, juveniles and animals in different countries including Austria, Germany, Jamaica, Japan, the United Kingdom and the United States. Three articles discuss approaches in animal assisted education including animal keeping and animal assisted interventions in schools and an experimental study investigating immediate effects of dogs on reading competence and accompanying stress reactions with cortisol and behavior. Other articles address topics involving children and their companion animals including dog walking by children and juveniles, risks of dog bites by the family dog, selection of pet dogs for families with a child with autism spectrum disorder (ASD) and the relationships that children with ASD have with their family cats. The interactions between children, juveniles and animals addressed in this eBook provide new insights into some scarcely investigated themes and underline the significance of animals in children's lives.
