Introduction

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program on the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program was designed to be a safe and effective means of increasing physical activity for women who were previously sedentary. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions included a warm-up, a low-impact aerobic workout, and a low-intensity strength training routine. The results of the study showed that the program had a positive effect on the physical fitness of the women. There was a significant increase in the women's cardiovascular fitness, as measured by the maximum heart rate and the maximum oxygen consumption. There was also a significant increase in the women's muscular fitness, as measured by the maximum strength and the maximum endurance. The program was well tolerated by the women, and they reported a high level of satisfaction with the program. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program can be an effective means of increasing physical activity for sedentary, middle-aged women.
