8. Explain the marketing concept and identify the benefits of marketing and the marketing process.

This marketing concept is the philosophy that firms should arrange the needs of their customers and then make decisions to satisfy those needs. (Kotler-3rd ed. marketing) promotion, selling, product/service management, marketing, financial management, internal management and distribution.

18. Identify the structure of the carbohydrate (e.g., product, sugar, polysaccharide, and monomers and describe its distribution in natural organisms).

[illegible]

11. Suggests that concepts of personal order and structure (e.g. space of personal life, relationships, etc.) are not necessarily universal.

Product lines, also known as product assortment, refers to the total number of products that a company offers to its customers. For example, your company may manufacture three sub-products. ... These four dimensions for a company's product line include breadth, depth, and consistency.

11. Discuss the legal aspects of product development (e.g., patents, copyrights, and trademarks).
